

27 July 1934

My dear Huxley,

Like nearly everything else I had on the stocks, my bird research came to a full stop when I was appointed here, and I have never had the time or enterprise to dig it out again. I am very glad of your reminder, as it adds to my determination to make some time for personal research, bit by bit, as my assistants begin to know enough to be useful.

Yours sincerely,