HISTORY OF POETRY SOCIETY

The Poetry Society, which, at a meeting on Tuesday night, decided to raise the fees for the year 1935, which the society will be reconstructed on a larger scale, was formed about 23 years ago by Mr. James Sedgley, under the guidance of Mr. James Sedgley, who established on the lines of the English Poetry Society. In the list of foundation members appear the names of Messrs. Judge Gordon, and Messrs. Parkes, H. W. Dhillon, H. McKel, Gurns, and E. S. Roach. Mr. A. M. Bonython, who has been president for many years, was also a foundation member. Lady Gurns has retained her interest through-out. Lady Boscawen was first president. There were good attendances at the meetings and many fine addresses were given by leading citizens. Including judges of the Supreme Court, professors of the University, doctors and lawyers. Lately interest has flagged, as it has thought that a recess would be beneficial.

Messrs. A. N. Deane (Engineering and Water Supply Department), M. H. Sando (Audit Department), E. W. Palmer (Crown Land Department), and D. White (Cavalry Department), have been awarded Institute of Public Administration scholarships tenable at Adelaide University for the year 1935. Messrs. Palmer and White have been admitted as associates of the Institute.

TRAINING SURGEONS IN AUSTRALIA

Post Graduate Course Arrangements

MELBOURNE, February 28. Importantly, the post-graduate training of surgeons in Australia were announced today. The Royal Australasian College of Surgeons has completed an agreement with the committee of management of Prince Henry's Hospital (formerly the Homeopathic Hospital) in St. Kilda road, to constitute the hospital a training school for candidates for the Fellowship of the College, and facilities for the post-graduate course. The hospital extensions have been completed.

The training will be for a minimum of five years to a standard similar to that of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, with which the Royal Australasian College of Surgeons is affiliated. Only post-graduate surgical training will be conducted at Prince Henry's Hospital and students registered with the Royal Australasian College of Surgeons will be admitted for post-graduate training. Provision will be made for laboratory work and for accommodation for lecturers and demonstrators which will be provided by the college. Most of the routine instruction will be given by the honorary surgeons staff of the hospital under the supervision of a director of post-graduate studies.

While the course of training at Prince Henry's Hospital will not be obligatory upon applicants for admittance to the fellowship, it will provide an opportunity for students to obtain the required standard with similar institutions elsewhere. The principal purpose of the college is to ensure that the required standard for surgery has been attained by candidates for fellowship. Hospital training will supply that evidence, but other evidence of a similar standard may be accepted.

New Scholarship in Scientific Research Available

The Commonwealth Department of Health has received advice from the office of the High Commissioner in London, that the trustees of the Lady Tait Memorial are offering two scholarships for research in blood diseases, with special reference to leucemia.

These scholarships, which are similar to four awarded in 1933 and 1934 are open for award in 1935. Two vacancies will be available to occur this year, and two scholarships will be ordinarily awarded on a whole time basis. They are each valued at £400, and are tenable for one year from October 1, 1935, and renewable to a maximum of three years. Applications for these scholarships, which will be awarded on a whole time basis, should be sent to the secretary, Scientific Advisory Committee, Bedford Court Mansions, London, W.C.1, by April 15, 1935.

Gift to University

A MUCH appreciated gift received by the University recently was a series of photographic lantern slides, and microscopical dealing with ophthalmology. They were presented by Mrs. Alfred Hill, wife of the late Alfred Hill.

Dr. Hill was the ophthalmic surgeon at Adelaide Hospital, and had prepared the slides and diagrams for his lectures to students. He died they were left to the University, until Mrs. Hill found them and thought them to the medical school of the University. The collection shows many parts of the eye, and appearance of various diseases.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

From "The Advertiser," March 6, 1885

TO urge the desirability of establishing evening classes at the University of Adelaide, a public meeting was held in the Stow Church lecture hall. It was arranged by the Literary Societies of the University, and presided over by the Governor (Sir William Robinson) took the chair. A resolution was adopted on the motion of Chief Justice Way to the effect that such classes would be a great benefit, and that an effort should be made to raise £5,000 to provide the necessary endowment.
