Commonwealth of Australia
Copyright Regulations 1969

Warning
This material has been reproduced and communicated to you by or on behalf of The University of Adelaide pursuant to Part VB of the Copyright Act 1968 (the Act).

The material in this communication may be subject to copyright under the Act. Any further reproduction or communication of this material by you may be the subject of copyright protection under the Act.

Do not remove this notice.

External Copyright permission (if applicable) - permission received 2006.

For personal use only.

Further information about the conditions of use of this item is available from Special Collections at the Barr Smith Library.
ON DIT
Official Organ of the Adelaide University Students' Union
"Doth sometimes counsel take
And sometimes t'eat"
Vol. 1
July 1, 1932
No. 6
Phryne Before Her Judges, or the Last Blast of the Trumpet.

An Evasion from a Legal Correspondent.

It is in some ways amusing and in others saddening to contemplate the ever-increasing disparity of the sexes, which is so well reflected in the life of this University. While the women are militant, striving always to improve their status as a sort of equal status should not exist. Again, how often does one see at the refectory a girl or a boy drinking on an otherwise empty table. What an anomaly there would be if a man were to be seen removing these female impromptus, or if he were to copy this typically feminine act of self-abasement by placing some of his own garments or accessories on a vacant table while he went and bought his dinner.

The trouble of the whole is, we think, that women have completely emancipated themselves, or, rather, have been emancipated by mud with the advice and consent of certain former parliamentaries and with the authority of the name, as follows: They have freed themselves from all disabilities which formerly attached to them, and have retained all the advantages which used to be conferred upon them in virtue of what the women themselves now loudly proclaim a "mistaken belief" in their inferiority to men.

The women are ringed objects for a rather dubious congratulation, for they have achieved the seemingly impossible task of eating their cake and having it. They are the recipients, and insist on being the recipients, of many favors the acceptance of which presumes any application of their much vaunted doctrine of the equality of the sexes.

Correspondence.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir—This is the first time in my life that I have written to you, and I am writing this letter to express my sentiments on the recent events in the University.

Firstly, I would like to express my thoughts on the recent debate about the role of women in society. While I support the idea of women's rights and believe that they should be treated equally, I also believe that there are some issues that need to be addressed.

Secondly, I would like to comment on the recent increase in the number of female students at the University. While this is a positive development, I am concerned about the potential for gender-based discrimination in the University's admissions process.

Finally, I would like to offer some suggestions for improving the University's policies regarding gender equality. These include: increasing representation of women on academic committees, implementing gender-balanced staffing, and providing more support for female students.

I hope that you will take these concerns into consideration.

Yours sincerely,

[Signature]

The Editor, "ON DIT."

Mr. Darcy entered the room, his face set in a stern expression. "What is the matter, sir?"

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.

The Editor, "ON DIT."

"Sir, I have received a message from the Duke of Norfolk," the butler announced. "He wishes to speak with you immediately."

"Very well, I shall meet him in the library," Mr. Darcy replied.

As he walked down the corridor, Mr. Darcy couldn't help but think about the recent events in the University. It was a difficult time, but he knew that they had to push through it.
SPORT.

Inter-Varsity Rifle Match.

The Inter-Varsity shoot was at Westhampton ranges in the first week of the holidays. The competition for first prize was very keen, and Adelaide, though handicapped by inexperienced young stems, managed to make a solid showing and win the event. We expect to see more men from the side at large in the State competition, if not in the final selection. Those who won were: Don Kelly, Denis St. Vincent, and Norman Cassady. The best first place rifle we have in South Australia, and Benison's new 25 yard rifle beat the best outside rifle we've yet seen.

Basket Ball Notes.

At last the Ball Club f estate! the University; we have won so less than we needed to, and the season is over. All we can do is to congratulate ourselves and look forward to next season, if we win the ball game or if we lose. The next season will be the best yet, and we are sure to get more and more credit for our efforts.

Men's Hockey.

University retained the position on the leading team by defeating Kangaroo on Saturday. The game was played under the instructions of the rules and the rules were followed. The game was a close one, and the University won by a small score.

The University won by a small score.

There was a stage where national hatreds vanished altogether, and where men stood shoulder to shoulder. The match was a fine one, and the University won by a small score.

The game was a close one, and the University won by a small score.

The next season will be the best yet, and we are sure to get more and more credit for our efforts.

The article ends with a summary of the season and a prediction for the future.