COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA
Copyright Regulations 1969

WARNING

This material has been reproduced and communicated to you by or on behalf of The University of Adelaide pursuant to Part VB of the Copyright Act 1968 (the Act).

The material in this communication may be subject to copyright under the Act. Any further reproduction or communication of this material by you may be the subject of copyright protection under the Act.

Do not remove this notice.

External Copyright permission (if applicable) - permission received 2006.

For personal use only.

Further information about the conditions of use of this item is available from Special Collections at the Barr Smith Library.
EDITORIAL

Shades of a Prison-house.

(From a Correspondent).

Harsh schoolboys about to enter the University probably look forward to lectures to theory than to any other branch of University activity. They imagine themselves to sit at the feet of the sages and absorb wisdom as it is expressed in a hurried speech. Yet in some Faculties (I cannot speak for all) their expectations are doomed to quick and bitter disappointment; for the lecturer, far from kindling any interest in his audience by his manner of address, does not lecture at all, but merely dictates from a little black book.

There are, however, students at once so sagacious and so intelligent that in these circumstances they can concentrate on what they are writing. Most become machines, whose main object is to catch up the few words they have fallen behind, and who think not at all, or very slightly, of the purpose of those words.

It may be that no amount of eloquence would breathe the fire of life into certain subjects, and that therefore the dry manual must be handed over intact; but, even granting this proposition to be correct, there is little to commend in the practice of doing out one or two hours at lecture.

There must evidently be some good reason for the retention of the system of dictatorial lectures. Students could, perhaps, employ their time profitably, while taking down the notes, by earnestly endeavoring to retool their views on the efficacy of the system.

U.W.U. At Home.

(With apologies.

Put listening! what is getting fatally atropine! After two considerations I do not wish to address Hooch and Abel to our students. This is, however, the kind of reading that has been behaving like a lamb. Nay, kind of listening. My wife, who is also a wife, suggests that Abel is a type of bad habit. I hope that this will be the case.

Adapting what was said by a friend of mine, who had returned after an absence of nine years to find that her son was a bad habit, I have been reduced to the necessity of dictating letters to young people. It is not a healthy practice.

The students were such a good, and much more to the disadvantage of the University than of themselves. Marvelous support. Diamond the Steer student.

Your truly,

RAY JACKSON.

To the Editor "On Dit."

Sir, I do not wish to address the Student, but there are some things that stick in my throat. I am sure the O.U.C. is quite a good student, and I am sure that the students of the University are quite good. The true University spirit is that of the students in the lecture hall. In the University, as a whole, and in every particular, the students are quite good. I am sure that the students of the University are quite good. The true University spirit is that of the students in the lecture hall. In the University, as a whole, and in every particular, the students are quite good. I am sure that the students of the University are quite good. The true University spirit is that of the students in the lecture hall. In the University, as a whole, and in every particular, the students are quite good.

To the Editor "On Dit."

Sir, the ordinary college system is perfect. It is the only system that can be called perfect. It is perfect in every particular. I am sure that the students of the University are quite good. The true University spirit is that of the students in the lecture hall. In the University, as a whole, and in every particular, the students are quite good. I am sure that the students of the University are quite good. The true University spirit is that of the students in the lecture hall. In the University, as a whole, and in every particular, the students are quite good.

To the Editor "On Dit."

Sir, the ordinary college system is perfect. It is the only system that can be called perfect. It is perfect in every particular. I am sure that the students of the University are quite good. The true University spirit is that of the students in the lecture hall. In the University, as a whole, and in every particular, the students are quite good. I am sure that the students of the University are quite good. The true University spirit is that of the students in the lecture hall. In the University, as a whole, and in every particular, the students are quite good.

To the Editor "On Dit."

Sir, the ordinary college system is perfect. It is the only system that can be called perfect. It is perfect in every particular. I am sure that the students of the University are quite good. The true University spirit is that of the students in the lecture hall. In the University, as a whole, and in every particular, the students are quite good. I am sure that the students of the University are quite good. The true University spirit is that of the students in the lecture hall. In the University, as a whole, and in every particular, the students are quite good.
Hockey.

"A" team has moved to the top on the premiership list.

"A" team has something else to be very proud of: a win against the Nelson Bays in the final of the premier division. The Nelson Bays have been frequently beaten by the "A" team, but this time they could not manage to get into the game. The Nelson Bays' manager, Mr. Johnstone, was not satisfied with the result of the match.

Football.

The game was played in the usual spirit and both teams played well. The Nelson Bays scored two goals, while the "A" team scored one.

Baseball.

Two teams played in the final game of the season on Saturday. The Nelson Bays won the game by a score of 10-3. The "A" team was not able to score any runs in the first two innings.

Basket Ball.

On Saturday, the Nelson Bays played against the Nelson Bays in the semi-final of the season. The Nelson Bays won the game by a score of 15-10. The "A" team was not able to score any runs in the first two innings.

Correspondence.

Dear Sirs,

It is now recently observed that the last few months have been troubled by a series of unfortunate events. The last few months have been especially hectic, with a number of significant events occurring in a short period of time.

The Australasian Intercollegian is available to students each month at thrice-yearly per copy.

This includes excellent reading material for all students, whether members of the S.C.M. or not.

The number of copies available through any active members of the S.C.M. or the undersigned.

R. W. Davis,
Secretary.