So this "On Dit," which endeavors to be a faithful record of University activity and a satisfactory expression of University thought, enters upon another year of life. Let us hope, fellow-students, that its forthright appearance will be like so many green leaves of wakefulness in that deep, wide sea of apathy which seems your native element, in which you swim with such serene and gurgling contentment. For to conceive of a more aptate aggregation than you are is a thing the imagination bogeys at. Beginning with mere absorption and listlessness, you have progressed in a steady descent, wetering through the various levels of dullness and unconsciousness, until you are in a fair way to finding permanent resting-places on the very death sea bottom of apathy and lethargy.

This paper is provided for your instruction and entertainment, free of charge, by a beneficent Union Committee. Yet recently, when the Editors, feeling that it should be changed to something more amuse and forceful, called for suggestions, they received three! One written and two verbal. The fact that the suggestions were not adopted, the first being unsatisfactory by reason of the nature of the paper, and the other being thrown off in flippancy spirit by a congenital idiocy, does not really matter. The Editors feel a deep and abiding gratitude towards those two or three people who managed to struggle for a brief moment up from the depths of their apathy and gape one bubble to the surface. The many depths of ocean hold the other sparks of the "On Dit."

Wherever you are, my dear fellow-wellwisher—youse study to twist steel rods, to cure and kill, to make the worse appear the better reason, so to train the minds of the young—remember that at present you are members of the University Union, that this paper is a Union property, and that you have a duty to perform towards it. The duty being, that if you yourself find it absurd or dull, do not burk nibbling among the empty weeks of your apathy, but to the surface and submit your own contribution towards making it a sane and constructive thing.

Admissions to the Bar.

We extend congratulations to Miss Hilary B. Mead, B.A., and Miss Eliza B. Mead, B.A., who were admitted to the Bar at 7:30 p.m. The meeting was most successful, and the prize competition was won by Miss Mead. As a mark of appreciation for her attendance, particularly of frahers. The authorities of the Bar are very gratified with the results of the examination, and we are confident that Miss Mead will make a splendid career. The number of those who were admitted to the Bar is not known, as the exact number of those who attended the examination is not known.

We are also pleased to hear that another successful candidate has been admitted to the Bar. This candidate, who is a member of the Society of the Bar, was admitted to the Bar on Saturday morning, and was presented to the Court. He is a member of the Bar, and has been practising for several years. He has been involved in several important cases, and has achieved considerable success. The bar is proud to have such a member, and we wish him every success in his future career.

Opening Meeting.

April 23th. This night to the University, where I saw divers students and others dance very prettily in the Refectory. Dr. Matties, the surgeon, and his lady, splendidly garded in white, received the company with much approbation. There were several hundred, all very jolly, which surprized me into my inconveniences. There were decorations on little platforms near the ceiling; these, as I thought, were a necessary measure at such sort of fayres, to keep the company from falling into excess. Dr. Matties had a paper in his hand, which he read before the company, and which was very well received.

for a cup presented by Messrs. Stevenson, towards whose services the younger members of the Inter-varsity relay team are well represented in championship events, and over 600 men and women athletes will be vying for the trophies awarded to the victors in individual and team events.

In the relay competition for the coveted cup, the team's strategy will be crucial. Each member will have to maintain a steady pace to ensure the team's overall success. The long jump, hurdles, and relay races will test the athletes' speed, agility, and teamwork.

For the one-mile, two-mile, and three-mile races, endurance and stamina will be key. The athletes will have to generate and sustain high energy levels for the duration of the race.

In conclusion, the Inter-varsity relay competition promises to be a thrilling event that will showcase the athletes' physical prowess and team spirit.
