Butterflies Flown Says Mr. Eardley

“ON DIT” UNCONVENCUED

(Official Press Rights Reserved)

As a result of some remarks on the subject of the butterflies (chiefly those escaped from Adelaide’s leading Evening newspaper) the matter was brought to the notice of the public. Mr. Eardley, who is well known in Adelaide, is a well-dressed young man of about thirty. He was much surprised at the number of butterflies that had escaped. He said he had seen butterflies before, but never so many as now. The butterflies were so numerous that he had not been able to count them.

Mr. Eardley was asked what he would do with the butterflies. He replied that he would put them in the newspaper, and that he would like to see how many people would be interested in them.

After the matter had been discussed, the matter was left with Mr. Eardley to settle.

Mr. Eardley said that he would put the butterflies in the newspaper and that he would like to see how many people would be interested in them.

The butterflies were so numerous that Mr. Eardley had not been able to count them.

Counsel’s Opinion

“On Dit,” ever since its establishment in 1885, has been a popular meeting-place for the literary and artistic circles of the city. It has become a sort of second home to many of the city’s prominent citizens.

The establishment has been subject to much criticism in recent years, and a number of petitions have been presented to the authorities, asking for its removal. However, the petitioners have been overruled, and the establishment has continued to thrive.

Mr. Eardley has been a frequent visitor to the establishment, and has always been received with hospitality. He has been a regular contributor to the various monthly periodicals, and his articles have been highly regarded by his contemporaries.

The establishment is situated in the heart of the city, and is easily accessible to all who wish to visit it. It is open every evening, and is visited by a large number of people.

The establishment is well-known for its excellent refreshments, and its friendly atmosphere.

UNIVERSITY GIRLS

Having the Time of Their Lives.

Adelaide, South Australia.

Local University students have a saying: "Out Scoutin' Co-Eds" for Social Preference. This is a widespread practice in all universities in South Australia. Students often say that it is a way of meeting new people and that it helps them to socialize.

The saying "Out Scoutin' Co-Eds" is used to describe the practice of meeting new people outside of the university environment. It is a way of breaking the monotony of daily university life.

The practice of "Out Scoutin' Co-Eds" is popular among students, and is a way of meeting new people and socializing.

MUSIC CRITICISM IN ADELAIDE

Editors on the Mat

It was significant that "The Advertiser" asked off Mr. John Hyams in the Ell, and郊, on 7th July. He has been the leader of the Adelaide press's music editors for a number of years. In a recent article, he wrote: "Music, it is the one art that is not to be studied for its own sake. It is the one art that demands an audience. It is the one art that must be a part of the life of the people."

The question of the future of music in Adelaide was discussed at a meeting of the Board of Discipline on Monday evening. The meeting was attended by a large number of members of the Council. The discussion was carried on in a spirit of cooperation and understanding.

The Council was asked to consider the matter of the future of music in Adelaide. It was pointed out that the Council had been asked to consider the matter of the future of music in Adelaide. It was pointed out that the Council had been asked to consider the matter of the future of music in Adelaide. It was pointed out that the Council had been asked to consider the matter of the future of music in Adelaide.

The meeting was adjourned until next Monday, when the Council will continue the discussion.

With the proposal to establish a University residence in a small city, one hundred students' houses, mental and moral, are supposed to be organized, and the moral and spiritual life of students is supposed to be improved. This proposal is not without its critics.

On the contrary, the University students' house is gaining a great deal of favor with the students. The University government has been asked to implement this project, and the students' house is supposed to be a positive influence in the students' mental and moral development.

Along with this development, the University students' house is receiving support from the University administration. The University president has expressed his support for the students' house, and has even issued a statement declaring that the University is committed to providing a safe and healthy environment for its students.

In conclusion, the establishment of the University students' house is a step in the right direction. It is a positive step towards improving the students' mental and moral development, and it is an important step in the University's commitment to providing a safe and healthy environment for its students.
