COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA
Copyright Regulations 1969

WARNING
This material has been reproduced and communicated to you by or on behalf of The University of Adelaide pursuant to Part VB of the Copyright Act 1968 (the Act).

The material in this communication may be subject to copyright under the Act.
Any further reproduction or communication of this material by you may be the subject of copyright protection under the Act.

Do not remove this notice.

External Copyright permission (if applicable) - permission received 2006.

For personal use only.

Further information about the conditions of use of this item is available from Special Collections at the Barr Smith Library.
The Other Hope for the World

AN IMPREGNABLE BRITISH EMPIRE

On August 9 a meeting of eighteen University students passed the following resolution unanimously:

"We maintain our trust in and support of a strong British Empire, which is the only sure foundation for progress and peace."

"We further believe that this strong British Empire is the best means of effecting the aims of the League.""
On the night of Monday, August 3, 1936, the German Reichstag was sacked by an angry mob, and the streets of Berlin were filled with cheering crowds. The German government made it clear that it would continue to fight until the end. The German army, under the command of General von Bock, marched through the streets of Berlin and took control of the city. The German government declared a state of emergency and called for a national referendum on the future of Germany. The referendum was held on August 5, and the German people voted overwhelmingly to accept the terms of the Munich Agreement.

The Munich Agreement was a treaty that was signed on September 30, 1938, between Germany, Italy, France, and Great Britain. The treaty was designed to prevent another war in Europe by allowing Germany to annex Austria and the Sudetenland. However, the treaty failed to prevent the outbreak of World War II, as Germany eventually occupied all of Europe.

The German government, under the leadership of Adolf Hitler, continued to expand its territory and attack its neighbors. In 1939, Germany invaded Poland, which triggered the start of World War II. The war lasted for six years and claimed millions of lives. The German government was ultimately defeated in 1945, and the country was divided into two separate entities: West Germany and East Germany.

The legacy of World War II is still felt today in Germany, as the country continues to work towards reconciliation and understanding with its former enemies. The division of Germany into two separate entities was eventually reunified in 1990, and the country has worked to build bridges with its neighbors and to make amends for its past actions.

The German government has also worked to strengthen its economy and to become a leader in the global economy. Germany is known for its strong manufacturing sector, and its products are sold around the world. The government has also invested in education and research, which has helped to drive innovation and growth.

In conclusion, the German government has a long and complex history, and its actions and decisions have had a significant impact on the world. From the days of the Roman Empire to the present day, Germany has been a force to be reckoned with, and its legacy continues to be felt around the world.
WE WANT A WAR!
SAYS A CONTRIBUTOR TO PAKISTAN

DOW, July 6th, 1936.

We call on the British administration in India to declare war against Pakistan.

"Sure, we do. Let’s not be exclusionist about this. If the two nations, our common business interest, our common resources, and our common use of the sea and the air do not make us an international organization, we are not intelligent.

"We are fortunate that thousands of阀 of us are European inheritors of the Sarawak nobility and ancient lineages. There’s something we’ve heard about the Sarawak nobility. They make an instant appeal to their loyalty in the face of a new, chrysalis-like life in the sarawak nobility. It is a new life, a life of the Sarawak nobility. And we are proud of it."

"If there’s one subject which seems to appeal more than any other to the Sarawak nobility it is the Sarawak nobility. They make an instant appeal to their loyalty in the face of new, chrysalis-like life in the sarawak nobility. It is a new life, a life of the Sarawak nobility. And we are proud of it."

"Sure, we do. Let’s not be exclusionist about this. If the two nations, our common business interest, our common resources, and our common use of the sea and the air do not make us an international organization, we are not intelligent."
Chapter 2

A SIMPLE STORY

(Continued)

The August vacation is always a story-telling one, and this year there are no exceptions. The next few weeks will take place here, in Sydney, among our friends and old baccalaureates. About 200 students will take part, and we will see the best of our visitors. Our University will be resuscitated at all the festivals except the Rugby and Boxing in Brisbane.

We have a delirium team going to Sydney, which will be most strong opposition. The first subject is "That Terrible joke should be Abolished." Adelaide takes the pro side, and if we can beat Sydney in this, we are sure of favorable re-arrangement for the future.

Our baseball team should stay up in Sydney, which will be most strong opposition. The next festival is August 25, and if we can win the most important between the universities, 1814, it will be a great win for Adelaide.

The gulf will be played in the next week, and the Inter-Varsity clash on the Thursday, and this is a "brow of a show."
The University of Tasmania was established in 1839, but only as an examining body, as it was not till three years later that any lectures were delivered. At no time was it more than a small institution. Now, however, it is one of the foremost universities of Australia.

The University of Tasmania has been a center of learning for almost a century. It has produced many notable alumni, including Nobel Prize laureates, politicians, and scientists. The university continues to foster innovation and excellence in various fields, including science, engineering, and the arts.

The social and cultural life of the university is vibrant, with a strong emphasis on community engagement and sustainability. The university has a strong commitment to research and education, and its graduates are valued across the globe.

The University of Tasmania is a testament to the enduring spirit of learning and discovery, and its legacy continues to inspire future generations of scholars and leaders.
RUGBY

North Adelaide showed what an improved team they are to beating the A’s on Saturday. It was a close match and many had expected it to be a dull one but there were many good points that made it worth watching. They were particularly strong on the wing and in the forwards.

WOMEN’S HOCKEY

The semi-final of the A grade women’s hockey was played on Saturday between Grangesville and hilltops. The game was a close one and Grangesville had a narrow lead before the score was opened by hilltops. Grangesville then played a quick, well-organized game and had several scoring chances that were prevented by the goal posts. The game ended in a 2-2 draw.

BASKETBALL

The A team had a successful Saturday, winning their fourth game in the A grade. This puts them in the semi-finals, which they will play against Wirrahah on Sunday. Wirrahah had a tough game, but they were unable to score and the result was a 3-0 victory for the A team.

EMOTION AND A MISSION

“Though Europe,” says Macomber, "is as lacking in excitement as a nanosecond,” the story has raised many questions and concerns. "Our civilization has remained emotionless, like a statue or a plant," he says. "We do not recognize this, of course, because it is the simplicity of the situation that makes it so.

MACOMBER’S WORK

Macomber’s work is significant for its focus on the emotional and spiritual aspects of life. "Our civilization has been emptied of emotion," he argues. "We are like a statue or a plant, existing without feeling or passion.

NEW STYLES AND SHAPES IN SPORTS HATS

In shades of Green, Brown, and Grey, the new season has arrived. These hats are now available in a wide variety of sizes and shapes.

Rifle Club

Brilliant Shoot by Brooks.

The range last Saturday was 200 yards, and although the conditions were ideal, the light was good after the rain and the wind did not blow at all. The range was 200 yards, and although the light was candidates for the first prize. M. Brooks had the best shot of the day. Although his rifle was fitted with a standard barrel, he only dropped one point in his first round and scores are impossible in his second round. This score of 30 out of 30, which was at the commencement of his second round, will mean a win for Brooks.

College Notes

ST. MARK’S.

The Trinity College team will arrive in Australia next week. They will play their first five games. Plans for entertainment around the city are being made.

ST. ANDREW’S COLLEGE

Strange moves and great news were heard on Saturday night and early Sunday morning. They appeared to have their origin in the victory of Don Edmonds and Ted Hovell’s Wallaby’s recent attempt at disqualification in the rugby world. It is a possibility that they are planning to appeal that decision.

OUR PROFESSORS

We were fortunate in obtaining an interview from the Professor of Classics at St Andrew’s College, Dr. O’Shea. He was unable to give us his full name for obvious reasons but he did reveal his identity on the back of a photograph. As Dr. O’Shea is a Classics professor, we can be sure that he is a man of great experience and knowledge.

MEANING AND PURPOSE

In the second and third weeks of school, students are expected to reflect on the meaning and purpose of their education. It is a time to consider the importance of our studies and how they fit into the overall plan.

MEDICAL STUDENTS

Inspect your Estensive REQUIREMENTS of MICROSCOPES AND ACCESSORIES

HARMOMETER OCEXOSCOPE

DISECTING SETS

and all other Instruments necessary to the working of the Laboratory.