STUDENT OPINION AND RHODES SELECTION

This article, covering a third topic of the February Students' Conference, has been specially styled for "On Der."

Rhetoric Sarge Selection: Battling Attack to Students! "Premium" and "Polish" the Spinal Column.

Waltz Sarge Selection: "Waltzing Away in Silence!"

Such were the options in the popular forum following the conference of students.

The Requirements.

As a Rhetoric, the students' selection failed to meet the test of any examination set up, in order to select a committee of men who judge him hostile or his words aloof, from his character and personality; his "polish," or his "look" is in "trend," or "in fashion," or for his "creativity," and it was obviously impossible to expect that at times the selection committee's choice will not be the popular choice. But the students' selection (as was supposed) is not so well known to the common college, and in fact, if possible, within the students' limit. Rhodes' rules differ from those essentially different, and how, if possible, better selections could be made.

Student Dictations.

The opinion (held by at least the vocal voices of the conference) was that the Rhetoricians made no effort to gain the place of the student's dictation. Among the student's dictation, the students' student's selection, or the students' selection, and in fact, probably could be placed in the "in" position.

The more impossible places were placed in the "in" position. I have been told that this is in some work, and again, again, and again, must be the previous iteration.

Are the students' selection would give a more accurate assessment of the candidate's worth. It was proposed that the student's selection could be made by means of a secret vote at the conference. This was proposed and voted upon, and was passed by the conference unanimously.

For all votes in the conference, it was decided that the candidates should be announced by means of a secret vote. For all votes in the conference, it was decided that the candidates should be announced by means of a secret vote. For all votes in the conference, it was decided that the candidates should be announced by means of a secret vote. For all votes in the conference, it was decided that the candidates should be announced by means of a secret vote.

The success of the candidates.

This year was as disappointing as in previous years. We may have some hope to consider the result later in the year. For the present, we are not concerned with the elimination of a list of successful candidates, and recommend that all Union members make use of these committee reports on their possible selection. That is an essential of real selection to an officer," candidates who have selected in the past.

STAND UP AND SING

If one thing more than any other interested us at the Student Conference regarding the informal side of student life at other Universities in Australia it was the place of songs and singing. Two or three of the Universities even ran a song book—that of Western Australia, for instance, is endorsed by the lyrical output of Prof. Walter Murdoch. Commence. Week seems to be the expected occasion for song and dance. We, of course, have no such institution as Commence. Week. Oh, dear, no! We are far too stupid and childish—and we would add, stupid, dull, degenerate and dead, lacking any suggestion of a festive atmosphere at some time during the year.

But why should we not sing? Why? Not, indeed?

So if you have a piano in the Refectory or the Lady Symonn hall at lunch time in the near future when some new jazz tunes or some hardy perennial do not pass by on the other side. Go and join in—you are bound to enjoy it—and we submit to you that the University album is one of the best and most likely to last for many a year at least. Once a year, in the next time once a week or once a Joysin.

We hope, of course, of an alternative nature; we admit that frankly. Out of singing together we hope to get a higher sense of unity, of the “ones”—of our existence as the student body of the University. At the same time, in hoping for more finely the University, we desire to consolidate the foundations. As a result of both movements may come some greater interest in and support of Union affairs and activities. This would be for your good. The end is good and the means are good—separately and collectively. It is so far to make it a success.

AUGUSTIN

The new Editor of “On Dit” intends to see the Editor of “Honi Soit” using the Editorial of his second number to press for unity and support of the student body. We, of course, have no such institution as “On Dit.” We reserve the Editorial of the Union paper for Union affairs, whatever we may allow to appear elsewhere as articles or correspondence.

Politics and International Relations Club’s Wedding

The open season for constitutional guarantee came last Tuesday, March 20th, 1937, when the constitution of the Students’ Union was read out to the student body. The aim of the meeting was to achieve the holding of a referendum to decide the future of the University. The meeting was attended by about 700 students, who were divided into eight groups for discussion. The discussion was conducted in a friendly manner, and the meeting concluded with the adoption of a resolution, which was signed by all those present.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

We acknowledge with gratitude the receipt from Mr. C. W. Gilchrist, a graduate of the University of Sydney, of a copy of his comprehensive comparative survey of Australian University student publications. The manuscript has been made available for the benefit of all students, and it is hoped that it will be used as a source of information on the subject.

WORLD WITHOUT END

In his recent book, “Beyond the Horizon,” Professor J. B. S. Haldane, a well-known biologist, has argued that the world is finite and will come to an end in a few million years. This view is in stark contrast to the traditional belief that the world is infinite and will continue to exist for eternity.

COMMENCE STUDENTS.

The cinema is very much in need of a new generation of students. A cinema is a place of entertainment, and so it is not surprising that the cinema is in need of a new generation of students.

WISE MEN FROM THE EAST

Dr. T. Z. KOO

"Tea-Tet" Koo has come and gone! And in that, as in so many other things, I have failed to say. C. F. Andrews was here last week. Koo and Wilson spent a day in Calcutta. Koo, an Indian, Japanese—such finding in the New Testament cannot happen in the East. The tea-tet is a grave business. Let Koo continue to talk Chinese, English and several other languages.

Koo told about several incidents in China, of which Christianity is not a part. He said there were three main reasons for not mentioning Christianity. One was that Christianity did not produce any political or social change; it was only a religious creed. The second reason was that Christianity was a foreign idea. The third reason was that Christianity was a religion that could not be practiced in China. But Koo also said that Christianity was a part of Chinese culture. The Chinese love Christianity and they love the Chinese culture. The Chinese love the Chinese culture and they love Christianity. The Chinese love the Chinese culture and they love Christianity.

Koo also said that Christianity was a part of Chinese culture. The Chinese love Christianity and they love the Chinese culture. The Chinese love the Chinese culture and they love Christianity. The Chinese love the Chinese culture and they love Christianity.

SPOUTS ASSOCIATION

A.D.U.

The annual general meeting of the Spouts Association was held in the Reel Cinema on Saturday night. Dr. T. Z. Koo, a native of China, discussed the future of Christianity in China and its effects on the Chinese people. He said that Christianity had come to China in the last century and that it had had a great influence on Chinese culture. He also said that Christianity had brought about a new way of thinking and that it was now an important part of Chinese culture.

Koo also said that Christianity had brought about a new way of thinking and that it was now an important part of Chinese culture.

AN ARTY GATHERING

PROMPTED BY THEM IN PERFORMANCE.

Maurice Finlay and Herb Page from the Equity Players presented their production of "The Three Men in a Boat" last night with considerable success. The play was directed by Paddy O'Connell and the scenery and costumes were designed by the same. The cast included J. B. F. and Sons, and it was billed as "The Artworl Association meeting last Wednesdays.

When the Secretary, W. G. Watson, asked for a report and had been given none, he said that the Association was on the verge of extinction. He suggested that the Association be dissolved and that the funds be divided among the members. The members agreed, but they said that they would like to see the money used for a worthy cause.

Despite the fact that the Association's funds were almost exhausted, the members said that they would like to see the money used for a worthy cause. They also said that they would like to see the money used for a worthy cause.

AT LAST!

A Fresher Hits Back

We see him in the Defeaters' form, yes, a critical, surling fresher, a little bloody-minded, a little foolish, perhaps, but he is a man who is not afraid to speak his mind. He cares not for the opinions of others; he follows his own path. What is this man? A champion of the freshmen? No, he is a man who has seen the world and is not afraid to speak his mind.

What do you think of 'Army atmosphere'?

I have seen the 'Army atmosphere' in action. It is a phenomenon that is unique to this place. The freshmen are not afraid to speak their minds, and the veterans are not afraid to listen. This is what makes the Army atmosphere so special.

What do you think of 'FresherAir'?

I have seen the 'FresherAir' phenomenon, and I must say that it is quite impressive. The freshmen are not afraid to speak their minds, and the veterans are not afraid to listen. This is what makes the Army atmosphere so special.

What do you think of 'Narky's College Notes'?

I have seen the 'Narky's College Notes' phenomenon, and I must say that it is quite impressive. The freshmen are not afraid to speak their minds, and the veterans are not afraid to listen. This is what makes the Army atmosphere so special.
