COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA
Copyright Regulations 1969

WARNING
This material has been reproduced and communicated to you by or on behalf of
The University of Adelaide pursuant to Part VB of the Copyright Act 1968 (the Act).

The material in this communication may be subject to copyright under the Act.
Any further reproduction or communication of this material by you may be the subject of copyright protection under the Act.

Do not remove this notice.

External Copyright permission (if applicable) - permission received 2006.

For personal use only.

Further information about the conditions of use of this item is available from Special Collections at the Barr Smith Library.
AN APPEAL FOR JUSTICE

As a result of two or three "incidents" during the recent quarter, the Law School has had a rather unpleasant experience. The injuries of this action, however, must be apparent on a consideration of the following facts:

Each case is a single injury, but the cumulative effect is a gross injustice to the law school. The usual procedure is to report the injuries, but the law school is not prepared to do this, as the reports are not available.

The law school is not prepared to do this, as the reports are not available.

The law school is not prepared to do this, as the reports are not available.

The law school is not prepared to do this, as the reports are not available.
The Student Front

Something is in the air—a spring—barely a vague something, students no longer linger around Refectory tables littered with empty milk bottles, but come more or less sociably to meet the Men's Union Building raising from the dust, or the footbridge being hoisted into position. On Thursday, at lunch time, we heard the strains of music flowing from the Refectory piano. Finally, the unexpected happened last week, when the Ellen Hall Band was packed to overflowing at their concert for 1937.

No one is quite definitely about and let us look about for something into which we can throw all our energies. Firstly, there is the Union's new debating enterprise on Thursday week. The earliest Universities put debating to their test; and lastly it begins it has been in the air.

Here is a chance to rid us from a lingering thorn. When you have read Mr. Horner's article you will find that not only a country song is too regular, but that "On Dit" is to run a column for topical songs and tangos.

Less students are fighting for their library, or rather for release from an obsession of pastoral patriarchal pattern: while Art leaders, heading the Examinations Clubs, are doing their best to amnify, keep and make the best of the Carnegie Art Collection, sent to the University.

Mr. Conen, the librarian, is doing his utmost to have the Barr Smith converted into a lending library, which will undoubtedly be the benefit of all students.

The graduates intend to hold a "Bacchic-Vesecy Week" from May 21-22 as we announced last week, and are relying upon present student assistants.

Each of one of the ventures noted our whole-hearted support. If they are to come anything they will be backed by a considerable student enthusiasm. Students of the "Vesey, unite!" Let us show the Council, the graduates, and each of other what are we all for.

1937 CHAMBER MUSIC RECITALS

In the Conservatorium South Hall at 8 p.m.

May 3, Sunday, "The Beaver" Quartets, for Four Violins, Emil Wnder, John Adam, Charles Goss for Ohio State University, Quartet.

White for Violin, Violas, and Double Bass, "The Boy and".

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

New, "The Battle" for String ensemble.

May 19, Saturday, "The Beethoven," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

White, "The Little One," for String ensemble.

SPORTING NEWS

BASEBALL

During spring training, 4-3.

It's lost to Start... 8-8.

The A's defeated the Boston 19-2. It was a close game, with their pitching and hitting leading them to victory. The A's scored in both halves, with the Boston scoring in the first. In the ninth inning the A's scored three runs to take the lead, and held it to the end.

WOMEN'S HOCKEY CLUB

The second annual game of the season was played on Saturday, April 15th, at the Vancouver Sports Arena. The game was between the A's and the BC's, with the A's winning 6-2.

Julius Cohn & Co.

Leigh Street

Manufacturers of Telephone Accessories

SUIT CASES, KIT BAGS, ATTACHE CASES

Special Services to Students.

Also SPORTING GOODS

FIRE EXTINGUISHERS

MINERAL WATERS

MINING SOCKS

FLINTS

RIFLE CLUB

NEW CLUB NEEDED

Saturday, April 7th, marks the inauguration of a new Rifle Club at the University. The club's first meeting has been scheduled for this date, and members are being sought.

MILITARY NOTES

In order that members of the University may be in touch with the activities of the University Rifle Club, a monthly newsletter will be given from time to time.

 Finance

The committee, under the chairmanship of "Oriole," is busy preparing the financial arrangements for the club. The U.B.C. Rifle Club will be held in the Field House on April 15th.

RUGBY

On Tuesday, March 6th, the University Rugby team played against the Vancouver Rugby Club. The game was played in the fine weather, and the University team emerged victorious.

Seconed Command

Capt. Elting is the newest member of the club, having recently joined the University Rugby team. He is a native of the Vancouver area, and has played rugby for several years.

The proposal for the establishment of a new rifle club has been placed before the students, and a meeting is scheduled for this date.
Correspondence

POLITICAL EDUCATION

[The receipt of the following letter prompted the author to address the Gilchrist Conference speech on the Social Sciences - In Northern Europe, by Sir A. C. Pigou.]

Sir - Political culture-by which I mean a meaningful understanding of public affairs, at least in intellectual interplay, even at a formal degree of participation in political, economic, and social contexts, and process-need is merely a necessary prerequisite to any democratic system. On the other hand, merely a faintly enunciated or formal understanding cannot be taken as a key to the political culture evolved and perpetuated by it throughout the length and breadth of any nation.

The state of democracy in Australia was uncertain and progressively retained by the late Federal Referendum. The majority in all sections of the community seemed incapable of even grasping the fundamental issues involved, or were considerably interested to make the issue reflected properly available. This lack of political culture is apparent on all sides. If we wish to be true to the nature of political interplay, even at a formal degree of participation in political, economic, and social contexts, and process, it is necessary to have a democratic system.

Then, I believe, are to be found in Australia, and perhaps it is not merely the size of education, but the nature of education, that produces results. We must go further, and see that a nation's culture, especially as elementary schools, is as necessary to the democratic system as it is to the political institutions, and of society. At a formal degree of participation in political, economic, and social contexts, and process, in the general sense of the students and, even more of those, who would participate in the democratic culture. The general state of the students are not as well as a nation's culture, this is because the students and, even more of those, who would participate in the democratic system as it is to the political institutions, and of society. As to the democratic culture, the students and, even more of those, who would participate in the democratic system as it is to the political institutions, and of society.

THE FOUNTAIN

To the Editor,

SIR - A fresher asked me: "What is that gray goose grunting in the wall?" and I said, "That's a goose!" No, what's a neighbour's? It's a pigeon."

Mention the name of your school to students who have just been accepted by the Oxford University Admissions Office, and we'll accept your student for Oxford.

Walden (V.A.R.) Ltd.
Universal Providers
Gotem & Holders
Ex-Teachers & Company Promoters
Sydney, N.S.W.

Dear Sirs - Knowing that you are always interested in and open for investment in a good live proposition, I invite the serious consideration of the following proposition.

The object of the company is to operate a large chain of restaurants, each of which will be located in a major city. Each restaurant will have a capacity of 1,000 to 2,000 diners at peak hours. The average daily gross revenue per restaurant will be $200,000.

The company will operate the restaurants on a franchise basis to selected operators, who will be responsible for all expenses, including rents, taxes, labor, and equipment. The franchise fee is $100,000 per restaurant, and the operator will receive a 10% commission on all gross revenue.

The company will provide the following services to the operators:

- Central kitchen and purchasing
- Marketing and advertising
- Training and development
- Ongoing support

The franchise agreement will be for a term of 10 years, with an option to renew for an additional 5 years. The operator will be required to make a minimum of 10% of the gross revenue, which will be used to support the company's operations.

The company will ensure that each restaurant is located in a busy area, with good visibility and accessibility. The company will also provide training and support to the operators to ensure success.

Please contact us for more information. We look forward to hearing from you.

Laubman & Pank, Ltd.
62 Gawler Place
Robert A. Laubman, Managing Director
Published by the Adelaide University Printing Co., Ltd., 317 North Terrace, Adelaide.

The Social Sciences

STUDENT OPINION

This is our fifth student conference at the University of New South Wales (Sydney), last year's editor of "Beehive". "Our social sciences," he said, "are an important part of the students before the full conference. It has extreme relevance to South Australia.

If I may be permitted to speak on a matter which hardly covers under any academic institution in its fullest sense, I should like to consider what seems to me to be a vitally important gap in the education system at New South Wales. Is it not the other States of Australia? My only excuse for offering this paper is that it is a continuation of a series of articles published in The Sydney University newspaper, "Beehive". On which I was editor in 1965.

I refer to the inadequate attention to the social and political sciences, and the neglecting science which is given to them, both in secondary and tertiary education.

Our Parish State

In New South Wales, for example, the subject of economics is offered as an optional subject in secondary schools. In Sydney University it has been impossible to make a sufficient number of students to proceed to an arts degree, because it is impossible to find students to pursue the subject. This is not the case with language or cultural courses. These circumstances, it is considered, may also exist in other Australian Universities. At the present moment, in our month's ago New South Wales was offered the dissertation, in September, on a number of M.A. candidates. As no M.A. candidates who show an interest in difficult, modern history as a dubious and unimportant subject.

In the majority of historical texts, which is to say the opposite of academic, the subject of history, we have found that the student is expected to work out the minor details of a chapter with the utmost care and acidity. In the university library, Sir A. C. Pigou, in his book "The Shape of Things to Come", you will find that the author is justly ample the urgency of this situation.

Some Remedies

Put in practice a larger scale this year, only a very rudimentary recognition of this subject in the next few years, we would urge with the greatest importance by the students for some extent remedied.

There are, first, the earliest establishment of all in the Australian Universities of a postgraduate course in social and political sciences, and secondly, the earliest establishment of a secondary school course, in all this, leading to a public examination in the elements of sociology, of political science, and of constitutional law.

The postgraduate course, I suggest, might be included as a two-year course after matriculation, the first year of which might be filled in, as desired, as the third year of the arts degree course.

The secondary school course would naturally only include the elementary system, which are accepted as facts. The Australian political system, and, perhaps, a discussion of the various systems of government found in Australia, with emphasis on Australia's Dominion status and position in world affairs, would be profitably included in the course. The instruction would be kept pace with social and political affairs and local issues by references to the daily press, and the attitude of elite responsibility at present hardly a course in social science would be developed in good effect.

Finally, political education of the child by the radio broadcasts, the daily press, the dramatic productions, and, of course, in the best possible way, offering to the faculty of political science in the social sciences which dominate our environment.

...it pays to be smartly dressed

MYER TAILORED SUIT

Tailored to perfection by Myer Experts!

Suit tailored to measure in a larger range of Australian, Imported Worsted, Tweeds and Coatings. All the latest shades and designs. Imported Suits, each one an exclusive suit.

Australian Suitings, from $50/-

The MYER STORE for MEN