In the absence of both the president (Mr. G. J. Stengel) and the secretary (Mr. J. F. Kennedy), the committee was called to order by Mr. E. H. F. Johnson, acting chairman. The meeting was held in the Union's Club Room. The secretary then presented the minutes of the last meeting, which were read and adopted. The treasurer then presented the financial report, which was read and adopted. The chairman then asked that, in accordance with past proceedings, some officer of the union should be present to introduce the speaker. This was done by Mr. J. H. McMillan, who introduced the speaker for the evening, Mr. E. H. F. Johnson. The chairman then, in accordance with past custom, introduced the speaker for the evening, Mr. E. H. F. Johnson. The chairman then, in accordance with past custom, introduced the speaker for the evening, Mr. E. H. F. Johnson. The meeting was then adjourned.

The committee of the Adelphi Union held its regular meeting on Tuesday, March 15, 1939, at 8:00 p.m. in the Union's Club Room. The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Mr. E. H. F. Johnson. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. The treasurer then presented the financial report, which was read and adopted. DON'T VOTE BLINDLY it is the opinion of many Union members that candidates for the elections are not sufficiently known. It is considered desirable that every member should vote for the full name of candidates eligible. To facilitate a proper selection, we have devised a questionnaire, designed to reveal the character, knowledge, training and ability of the candidates. Unfortunately we have been unable to interview only half the candidates. This is the result partly of their lack of interest in the questionnaire, partly of our own negligence, partly of the absence of several candidates at military camps, partly of the lack of time, and partly of other barriers beyond our control.

In desiring this questionnaire, we have tried as much as possible to keep simple fundamental questions on subjects such as art, science, sanitation, literature, social science, etc. The questionnaire is divided into eight parts, and covers a wide field, as we see. It reads as follows:

I. The fact that we can get out of it is not in our favor, in politics.
1. The answer is a lawyer.
(b) There can be no such thing.
(c) I think he's crooked, anyway.
(d) Yes, there is the possibility of that it may have lawyers out of order.
2. In its interests of democracy—yes.
3. I cannot speak from experience.
4. We need have our little fights when counting.
5. I think it has many advantages, especially when it can be made of something of the sort of people other than those known.
6. You promised that some more advances in their discussion at a general meeting.
7. In the light of political development, as we discover...
8. At the discretion of the chairman.
9. —General Knowledge.
(a) What is your occupation?
(b) How is your approach?
(c) Do you know anything about history?
(d) What is the character of your neighbor?
(e) Do you know that the students are those at the University?
(f) Fair-minded and right.
10. If it is true that you are one of five men, do you like this a fair distribution? (If there is no agreement, the candidates are determined.)
11. Quick Decision and Frankness.
What is your judgment of the Union?
(a) In a man and a half years ago and in the Union?
(b) In a man and a half years ago and in the Union?
12. General Culture.
(a) Where is your art library?

The candidates for the past two recent themselves is the questionnaire, but a summary has been added to each one, to bring out the natural results.

VI. (a) Indubitably, being a flinty-mouthed man.
(b) Yes, with reservations.
(c) You're a hound.
(d) No, braced and gasped.
(e) It's a fact. You followed the game alternately through the glass and at the public stand.
(f) You, sir, are the one who doesn't enter the Union Committee established by the Union Commission.

Summary:
From his first answer you would guess the impression of a person from whom the question was asked. What does the boy think, exactly? Is his answer to VI (a) and (d) only a sign of the nervousness that is not enough to express his feelings? Mr. Darlington, a cold, even his answer to VI (c) is not necessarily an indication of his opinion. Mr. Darlington, an absent-minded man, has little taste for either the game or the public, and his answer to VI (e) may be an indication of his attitude towards the public stand.

Summary:
Mr. Darlington is quick to seize an advantage, and his answer to VI (c) and (d) is an example. The instructor has to wonder if he is thinking of the individual who is not enough to express his feelings. MR. WELLS.

Mr. Wells, from the first issue of "On Dit," appeared a large figure of the total impression. Now after the second issue, he seems to be a more reticent figure, and I find myself wondering whether it is not a question of the two of us who are reading the same number of "On Dit." It appears to me that Mr. Wells, a man of many parts, might well be more reticent in his second issue, but I am not sure that this is the case.

IMPARTIALITY

In my last letter, I expressed my regret that the new editor should have been appointed. I find that Mr. Wells has been appointed for a third issue, and I am wondering whether this is not a question of the two of us who are reading the same number of "On Dit." It appears to me that Mr. Wells, a man of many parts, might well be more reticent in his second issue, but I am not sure that this is the case.
