Swimming Pool or Refectory Lawn?

Are You Satisfied with Your Surroundings?

It has often been said that one could and a little less heat, would make an ideal swimming pool. The lack of suitable surroundings is such a problem and the solutions are obvious—cool, fresh, and shaded areas that are close to nature. This would provide a refreshing break from urban life.

There are, of course, objections to this scheme—the main one being the lack of funds and lack of space. However, it is possible to turn a corner in your yard into a comfortable area for relaxing and enjoying the outdoors.

1. Students could have in their room, attend a much-overlooked activity for something similar to which their (and) activities. They could enjoy the outdoors and reacquaint themselves with the environment.

2. Refectory staff, at present busy preparing the meals and cleaning, could be used to maintain the area or provide services.

3. Students and others being able to enjoy the swimming pool or the refectory lawn in the future.

(4) Disgraced Union members during the strike request for an immediate return to work in the absence of any additional protest.

Though this is a political event, there are many who think that it would cost too much. But this is the time—when the people can take matters into their own hands and fight for what they believe in.

—What’s the Point?

No free Wednesday afternoon?

Ah, but it is an accepted principle that students should have a mid-week afternoon off in order to keep themselves fresh, vital, and ready (or, if necessary) on how they start.

Here’s the Point.

Here is indeed the main point of this event. The students don’t have this break. The ideal would seem to be a short work period during the week.

TIT-BITS FROM UNION COMMITTEE MEETING

A letter has been sent to the University Committee regarding the shortage of manpower and space at the Refectory. A list of facilities available for students is related to the demands placed upon them.

Perpetual sub-committee has been set up to handle housing demands. N.S.W.—Melbourne University has four (4) replies to its housing survey.

A conference on University Publications is to be held in the university's conference room.

Movers are absent from the meeting due to various reasons in the different states.

Movers are also absent to get an excel job done. The group of movers have asked to be paid, otherwise other members do not want to attend.

It was decided to alter the act in the university, it being feared that many clauses would be impossible to appear in the running order if they were not all given a spell.

It is with regret that “On Our Own” Minister, John Curtis. His task as war-time Prime Minister has been more difficult than that of any of his predecessors. It is to be hoped that the security and integrity will continue to be shown by those we lead him in the years of war and peace.

ANGLOPHILE, TAKE NOTE!

“The French Case in the Levant” was the subject of a talk given for the P. L.R.C. by Prof. C. H. in Wed. evening. The professor thought that the French presentation of the French Case...” Since his only purpose of information on the subject, other than the above, was that French railways were French railways received from Sydney...

These results make it clear that the French were surprised at British action, which came without any prior negotiations with the French Government. There were far more British than French troops in the Levant at the time of the revolt, and French troops were only in sufficient number for keeping troops. Important sites were quite out of the question, as far as these troops were concerned.

Some commentators likened Britain’s corollary attitude to the Arabs to her attitude during the Munich crisis. They were surprised that Churchill did not want to say anything on the general problem in the Middle East.

Some British papers considered that the Arabs took the opportunity, while France was still recovering from German occupation, to make an attempt to rid themselves of all European influence. The point at issue seems to be that of strategic considerations. They pointed out that Belgium had made concessions in neighboring countries—to Iraq, for example, she had air bases. She had

THE EDITOR OBLIGES!

To the Editor,

On July 6, 1946, 1996.

Sincerely yours,

W. A. N. WILLS.

Dear Mr. President,

I believe that it is childish and unadvisable for any of our students, or prospective students, to actually listen to the radio or to read the papers. This is a great waste of time and energy, and it is best to avoid it altogether. Any person who has not read the paper or listened to the radio during the week has no right to discuss the events of the week. The only exception to this rule is the student who has been ill or who has had other important commitments.

Yours truly,

W. A. N. WILLS.

The above letter was published in the University's student newspaper. It is an attempt to stimulate public interest in the various organizations on campus, such as the Orchestra, the Glee Club, and the University Players. The student body is encouraged to participate in these activities and to attend the various events.

ARTICLES AND ARTWORK

On Friday, June 20, Dr. Andrew E. Browne, Curator of Modern Architecture at the University of Pennsylvania, was appointed to the position of "Appraiser of Modern Architecture." Dr. Browne has been a member of the University faculty since 1945, and has taught courses in modern architecture and urban planning. He is a well-known figure in the field of modern architecture, and has written several books on the subject. Dr. Browne's appointment was made by the University's Board of Trustees.

The article was published in the University's student newspaper. It is an attempt to stimulate public interest in the field of modern architecture, and to encourage the University community to support the new appraiser of modern architecture, Dr. Andrew E. Browne.

STUDENT HEALTH

Taken in its narrow sense, the phrase "student health" arouses thoughts of the infirmities likely to afflic student bodies, or of brawny figures running across the football field. These may include football injuries, dental problems, and the like. But probably the most important single health problem facing students is psychological, and this, one might add, is not confined to the student athlete, a footballer or not. Dr. Frank Mitchell, however, in his address to the "Student Health Day" Conference in February, gave voice to a much broader meaning. He considered that "health" involved not only the body, but the mind as well, and proposed that all educational institutions consider the mental and spiritual health of the student along with the more tangible aspects of health. For example, he suggested that schools pay less attention to the number of students who are physically fit, and more attention to the psychological well-being of students, which includes factors such as stress, anxiety, and depression.

Body and Mind.

Dr. Ardsley has said with reference to British universities that they must not only provide a physical, but an all-round education. And Dr. Mitchell echoed this point. He pointed out that Charles Robertson has said that "the thing which most counts for health is the parts of the human individual that are not taken into account for the support of the idea that the University is a place for intellectual development, but a place where ambition is given the whole aspect of a student's living.

Arts and Culture.

University life is the opportunity for the student to reflect on the nature of his world and to challenge traditional views. It is a time for intellectual growth and self-discovery. The student is encouraged to explore different areas of study and to develop critical thinking skills. This allows for a more comprehensive understanding of the world and the ability to make informed decisions.

Athletic events are also a significant part of university life. The emphasis on physical activity and sports helps to promote a healthy lifestyle and fosters a sense of community. It is a time for students to engage in various activities and to develop new friendships.

Urban Health.

In the city, the student is exposed to a variety of health challenges. For example, the influx of students into the city can lead to increased traffic and pollution, which can impact the overall health of the community. Additionally, the close proximity of students can lead to the spread of infectious diseases. Therefore, it is important for the university to provide resources and support to help students navigate these challenges.

Old Silas and his pardner, Hor-

train for more than a hundred years, and it was an old train with a lot of history.

They had seen many things, and horrible things had happened to them.

One night, Silas had been alone in the engine, and he had heard a noise in the coupling. He had looked out the window and seen something moving.

'What's that?' he asked.

'More trains,' replied the engineer.

'I don't think so,' said Silas.

He had grabbed the

brake handles and slowed down the train.

They had reached a little station where there wasn't anyone around.

'What are we doing here?'

asked Silas.

'We're following the tracks,' replied the engineer.

'But there are no

tracks here,' said Silas.

The train came to a stop, and they got out.

They found a little cabin in the woods, and inside, they saw a ghostly figure.

'I know that face,' said

Silas.

'It's the

engineer.'

The ghostly figure smiled and said, 'I'm just here to give you the

tracks.'

And with that, it disappeared.

The

engineer looked at Silas

and said, 'That was just a dream.'

'No,' said Silas.

'I saw

it.'

And with that, he

pulled the brake handles

and put the train back on the tracks.

On Saturday, the 21st, we were defeated by Brighton, the top team. We lost the first goal to the first five minutes of play, but then failed to recover again in the first half. Brighton had scored two goals to our one, and this virtually won the matter for them. In the first half we played much more like a team, but 19 goals was way too much for us to catch up. Half-time in the second half, with the rest of the team doing their best to make up for our mistakes, we scored six goals, while their backs were frantically down to three. The final score was 25 goals to 7.

We sincerely thank our president, Mr. G. Z. Starkey, for his generous donation to the club.

This year we shall meet on June 21st, at 4 P.M. in the gymnasium of the Motion Picture Laboratory. At this time, we shall hear an address on a motion picture subject, followed by a social in the Frill Club room.
