ADELAIDE LAW REVIEW RESEARCH PAPER No. 1

A. R. BLACKSHIELD, THE ABOLITION OF PRIVY COUNCIL APPEALS. JUDICIAL RESPONSIBILITY AND "THE LAW FOR AUSTRALIA".

Just published by the Adelaide Law Review Association: pp. i-iv, 1-176

Associate Professor Blackshield's work is the first comprehensive treatment of the rapidly evolving law and practice relating to Privy Council appeals from Australia. He discusses the instruments conferring the appeal (Chapter 2); the present uncertain position of precedent and especially the position of State Supreme Courts (including analysis of the recent pronouncements in N.E.M.G.A. Ltd. v. Waind) (Chapter 3); the constitutional arguments involved in abolition of the appeal by Commonwealth or State legislation (Chapter 4); and finally, the arguments which lead to the conclusion that the effect of the Constitution and/or Commonwealth legislation is that the appeal has already been legally terminated (Chapter 5).

Cost: $4.95 (plus 60c postage; 80c overseas)

RESEARCH PAPERS

The Editors invite further contributions on subjects of legal interest for this series of Research Papers. Each paper will be between 80-120 pages in length (c. 35,000 words), and the subject should warrant original research and writing at that length. The series is intended to provide a forum for work of high quality intermediate in scope between an ordinary review article and a full-length monograph. Intending contributors are advised to contact the editors for conditions of publications, style guide, etc. Mss. should be typed, and two copies sent to:
