The Rhodes Scholar.

Mr. N. W. Jolly Diluted.

A Distinctioned Scholar.

The committee appointed to select a suitable candidate for the Rhodes Scholarship, announced their decision on Thursday afternoon. The seats which were held down for the next three years by the late Mr. Rhodes himself, on which the qualifications were to be based, were announced as follows:

(a) Interdisciplinary and academic achievement.

(b) Experience in outdoor pursuits.

(c) Qualities of manner, grace, and deportment.

(d) Capacity to make the best use of the opportunities for travel and study.

(e) Ability to contribute to the life of the college.

Mr. Jolly, who is the only candidate to have been elected, is known to have been one of the most successful candidates in the last two years. He has been the subject of much discussion among the members of the committee, and it is believed that he will make an excellent Rhodes Scholar.

The Graduate Course.

In 1899, Mr. Jolly entered the University of London, and in 1902 he completed his degree in philosophy, politics, and economics. He was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and was later admitted to the University of Oxford, where he received his degree of Master of Arts. He has since been the recipient of several scholarships and prizes, and is now a member of the University of Oxford, where he is engaged in research in the field of political economy.

Mr. Jolly is a member of the University of Oxford, and is currently engaged in research in the field of political economy. He has been the recipient of several scholarships and prizes, and is currently engaged in research in the field of political economy.

The Necessary Qualifications.

The necessary qualifications for the Rhodes Scholarship are a good academic record, a capacity for outdoor pursuits, and a capacity for making the best use of the opportunities for travel and study. These qualifications are essential, and no candidate will be considered unless they can demonstrate that they possess these qualities.

The Committee.

The committee appointed to select a suitable candidate for the Rhodes Scholarship, announced their decision on Thursday afternoon. The seats which were held down for the next three years by the late Mr. Rhodes himself, on which the qualifications were to be based, were announced as follows:

(a) Interdisciplinary and academic achievement.

(b) Experience in outdoor pursuits.

(c) Qualities of manner, grace, and deportment.

(d) Capacity to make the best use of the opportunities for travel and study.

(e) Ability to contribute to the life of the college.

Mr. Jolly, who is the only candidate to have been elected, is known to have been one of the most successful candidates in the last two years. He has been the subject of much discussion among the members of the committee, and it is believed that he will make an excellent Rhodes Scholar.

The Graduate Course.

In 1899, Mr. Jolly entered the University of London, and in 1902 he completed his degree in philosophy, politics, and economics. He was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and was later admitted to the University of Oxford, where he received his degree of Master of Arts. He has since been the recipient of several scholarships and prizes, and is now a member of the University of Oxford, where he is engaged in research in the field of political economy.

Mr. Jolly is a member of the University of Oxford, and is currently engaged in research in the field of political economy. He has been the recipient of several scholarships and prizes, and is currently engaged in research in the field of political economy.

The Necessary Qualifications.

The necessary qualifications for the Rhodes Scholarship are a good academic record, a capacity for outdoor pursuits, and a capacity for making the best use of the opportunities for travel and study. These qualifications are essential, and no candidate will be considered unless they can demonstrate that they possess these qualities.

The Committee.

The committee appointed to select a suitable candidate for the Rhodes Scholarship, announced their decision on Thursday afternoon. The seats which were held down for the next three years by the late Mr. Rhodes himself, on which the qualifications were to be based, were announced as follows:

(a) Interdisciplinary and academic achievement.

(b) Experience in outdoor pursuits.

(c) Qualities of manner, grace, and deportment.

(d) Capacity to make the best use of the opportunities for travel and study.

(e) Ability to contribute to the life of the college.

Mr. Jolly, who is the only candidate to have been elected, is known to have been one of the most successful candidates in the last two years. He has been the subject of much discussion among the members of the committee, and it is believed that he will make an excellent Rhodes Scholar.

The Graduate Course.

In 1899, Mr. Jolly entered the University of London, and in 1902 he completed his degree in philosophy, politics, and economics. He was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and was later admitted to the University of Oxford, where he received his degree of Master of Arts. He has since been the recipient of several scholarships and prizes, and is now a member of the University of Oxford, where he is engaged in research in the field of political economy.

Mr. Jolly is a member of the University of Oxford, and is currently engaged in research in the field of political economy. He has been the recipient of several scholarships and prizes, and is currently engaged in research in the field of political economy.

The Necessary Qualifications.

The necessary qualifications for the Rhodes Scholarship are a good academic record, a capacity for outdoor pursuits, and a capacity for making the best use of the opportunities for travel and study. These qualifications are essential, and no candidate will be considered unless they can demonstrate that they possess these qualities.

The Committee.

The committee appointed to select a suitable candidate for the Rhodes Scholarship, announced their decision on Thursday afternoon. The seats which were held down for the next three years by the late Mr. Rhodes himself, on which the qualifications were to be based, were announced as follows:

(a) Interdisciplinary and academic achievement.

(b) Experience in outdoor pursuits.

(c) Qualities of manner, grace, and deportment.

(d) Capacity to make the best use of the opportunities for travel and study.

(e) Ability to contribute to the life of the college.

Mr. Jolly, who is the only candidate to have been elected, is known to have been one of the most successful candidates in the last two years. He has been the subject of much discussion among the members of the committee, and it is believed that he will make an excellent Rhodes Scholar.

The Graduate Course.

In 1899, Mr. Jolly entered the University of London, and in 1902 he completed his degree in philosophy, politics, and economics. He was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and was later admitted to the University of Oxford, where he received his degree of Master of Arts. He has since been the recipient of several scholarships and prizes, and is now a member of the University of Oxford, where he is engaged in research in the field of political economy.

Mr. Jolly is a member of the University of Oxford, and is currently engaged in research in the field of political economy. He has been the recipient of several scholarships and prizes, and is currently engaged in research in the field of political economy.