FIRST JOSEPH FISHER LECTURE

ADDRESS BY MR. GYLES TUNER.

The first Joseph Fisher Lecture was given on Thursday evening by Mr. H. W. Turner, of the University of Illinois.

The lecture was entitled "The University of Illinois and Commercial Education," and was delivered in the University Hall to a large audience.

Mr. Turner began by reviewing the history of commercial education in the United States, and the growth of the University of Illinois.

He then discussed the aims and objectives of commercial education, and the importance of integrating commercial education with general education.

Mr. Turner concluded his lecture by emphasizing the need for more support and funding for commercial education programs.

The audience was highly appreciative of Mr. Turner's lecture, and many expressed their agreement with his的观点.
