UNIVERSITY STUDENTS.

APOLOGY TO THE GOVERNOR.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

The students at the University were in an unusual state of excitement on Monday morning. This excitement was due to the meeting of the Board of Trustees, which had been called to consider the matter of the financial crisis facing the University. The President of the University had telegraphed to the governor, as well as to the Secretary, that he was unable to attend the meeting due to ill health. It was feared that the absence of the President might delay the proceedings.

On October 9, 1903, the students were informed that the President had been hospitalized and that the meeting of the Board of Trustees would be postponed. This news caused a great deal of concern among the students, who feared that the financial crisis might not be resolved.

The situation was further complicated by the fact that the Governor, who had been called upon to preside over the meeting, was also unable to attend due to illness. The students were unsure of what to expect and were worried about the future of the University.

The Governor, however, was able to attend the meeting via telegraph and was able to provide some guidance on the financial situation. He encouraged the Board of Trustees to work diligently to find a solution to the crisis and reassured the students that the University would continue to provide an education of high quality.

The meeting was adjourned without a decision being made, and the students were left with the responsibility of finding a solution to the financial crisis. They were determined to do everything in their power to ensure the continued operation of the University.

HONORABLE W. J. HUTTON.

As an expression of the deep concern of some of the students over the threatened furloughs of Assistant Professors St. John, senior, and Fitch, junior, and of the danger of the same affecting the future of the University, a meeting of the students was called at 3:00 o'clock Monday afternoon. The roll was taken, and the following resolution was adopted:

RESOLVED, That the students of the University of Virginia protest against the proposed furloughs of Assistant Professors St. John and Fitch, and recommend that the Board of Trustees take steps to prevent such action.

EXEMPLARY STUDENTS.

The board of disciplinarians of the Academy of the United States, in accordance with the directions of the Secretary of the Interior, of which body the President is a member, have reported the case of a student, named Smith, for disobedience of orders. The case was referred to the board of trustees for final action.

The board of trustees met on Monday, October 9, 1903, and voted to suspend the student until a full investigation could be made. The board of disciplinarians, in their report, stated that the student had been disorderly and had failed to obey the orders of hissuperior officers.

The case was referred to the board of trustees for further action. The board of trustees voted to suspend the student until a full investigation could be made. The student was notified of the suspension and was given an opportunity to appear before the board of trustees, where his conduct would be reviewed.

The board of trustees met again on October 12, 1903, and voted to dismiss the student. The board of disciplinarians, in their report, stated that the student had continued to misconduct himself and had failed to obey the orders of his superiors.

The case was referred to the board of trustees for final action. The board of trustees voted to dismiss the student. The student was notified of the dismissal and was given an opportunity to appeal the decision.

The Governor demands an explanation.

Miss Eileen Hancock sought to feed a cub bear after her experiences at the Town Hall. The bear, which was said to be a threat to the town, was cornered in a building. The building was found to contain a number of live bears, which were removed by the police. The bear was fed and released.

The incident received nationwide attention, and the Governor demanded an explanation from the police chief. The police chief explained that the bear was feeding on garbage and that the town had been warned about the problem.

The Governor had promised to provide a safe environment for the bears, and he was disappointed that the police had not been able to resolve the problem. He emphasized the importance of protecting the bears and ensuring that they were not a threat to the community.

The incident was widely reported, and the Governor's statement was seen as a failure to protect the bears. The Governor was criticized for not taking sufficient action to ensure the safety of the community.

The Governor's statement was also seen as a failure to protect the bears, and the issue of bears in the city was brought into the public eye. The Governor was criticized for not taking sufficient action to ensure the safety of the community.
