The news of the death of Mr. E. R. Boulton came upon the community with a shock which transmutes the feelings of sorrow it engendered. There was no one present at the commencement of the funeral service other than the clergyman, who was in the church until the conclusion of the service. The news came as a shock to all who knew him, and there was a general feeling of sympathy and regret. The funeral was a moving ceremony, and the mood of the congregation was one of deep sorrow. The church was filled with mourners, and the service was conducted with great dignity and solemnity. The coffin was borne on the shoulders of the clergy and the mourners, and the熊 was taken to the grave with great respect and reverence. The burial was a quiet and peaceful ceremony, and the congregation was left with a feeling of sadness and reflection.

The late E. R. Boulton was a man of great learning and ability, and his death is a great loss to the community. He was a man of great kindness and compassion, and his death is a great loss to all who knew him. The funeral was a fitting tribute to his memory, and the congregation was left with a feeling of respect and admiration for his life and work.