At the Ashfield Church on Monday evening, Mr. W. G. W. Woodhouse, Rev., F.R.G.S., gave a lecture on the "Stonehenge of the South." He stated that the stones of Stonehenge were not the work of the Druids, as was once supposed, but were the work of the early Christian mortuary stones. He said that the stones were erected in memory of the dead, and that the circle was a cemetery. The stones were not used for worship, but for burial. He also stated that the stones were not the work of the ancient Greeks, but were the work of the ancient Celts. He said that the stones were erected in memory of the dead, and that the circle was a cemetery. The stones were not used for worship, but for burial. He also stated that the stones were not the work of the ancient Greeks, but were the work of the ancient Celts.