The annual dinner in connection with the University of Adelaide was held at the University Hotel on Tuesday evening. The Chancellor (Sir Samuel War, Bart., LL.D.) was in the chair. The University was represented by the Governor (Sir George Heobald). Sir Alfred Francis (Dean of the College of Medicine), Professor Hay (H. T. Price), the Wardens of the Medical School, Dr. J. W. Williams, the Director of Education (Dr. A. Williams), Dr. H. J. M. Hamilton (Private Secretary to the Governor) and Mr. W. H. Inman.

When the tables had been cleared the compére (Mr. H. F. Brown) announced the presence of His Excellency the Governor. (Applause.)

The Governor proposed "His Excellency the Governor's" health and said that he was happy to be able to take part in the joyous occasion of the hundredth anniversary of the University and that he was therefore glad to be able to convey the congratulations of His Excellency the Governor, (Applause.)

The Governor said that he had attended the initial proceedings of the University as the representative of the King. None of the distinguished guests could fail to appreciate the beauty of the occasion and the magnificent buildings, in artistry, in real temper, with discriminating taste. In his opinion the buildings were the handsomest in the State. (Applause.) He was called upon to propose a toast to the University, with which connection he had been connected for many years. (Applause.) He congratulated the University on the beautiful buildings which they had undertaken and on the splendid progress which they had made in their work. (Applause.) He then proposed the toast of the buildings, which was promptly responded to. (Applause.) It was with a cheerful heart that he was able to be present at the celebration of the great centenary of the University. (Applause.)

A toast was then proposed to the Health of the University. (Applause.) It was proposed by the Chancellor, who said that the students of the University had the honor of being associated with the University and that it was a joy to see the beauty of the buildings and the progress of the University. (Applause.)

The toast was then proposed to the Health of the University. (Applause.) It was proposed by the Chancellor, who said that the students of the University had the honor of being associated with the University and that it was a joy to see the beauty of the buildings and the progress of the University. (Applause.)

A toast was then proposed to the Health of the University. (Applause.) It was proposed by the Chancellor, who said that the students of the University had the honor of being associated with the University and that it was a joy to see the beauty of the buildings and the progress of the University. (Applause.)

The toast was then proposed to the Health of the University. (Applause.) It was proposed by the Chancellor, who said that the students of the University had the honor of being associated with the University and that it was a joy to see the beauty of the buildings and the progress of the University. (Applause.)

A toast was then proposed to the Health of the University. (Applause.) It was proposed by the Chancellor, who said that the students of the University had the honor of being associated with the University and that it was a joy to see the beauty of the buildings and the progress of the University. (Applause.)

The toast was then proposed to the Health of the University. (Applause.) It was proposed by the Chancellor, who said that the students of the University had the honor of being associated with the University and that it was a joy to see the beauty of the buildings and the progress of the University. (Applause.)