The Drama

Professor Dettman will deliver the second of his course on the "Classical and Romantic Drama" this evening at the University of Sydney. The course will continue on several nights this week, and it is expected that Professor Dettman will also be in Sydney on several other evenings to give lectures on the subject. The lectures will be held in the University of Sydney's main lecture hall, and will be open to the public.

National Musical Examinations

A New Australian Scheme

A few months ago an agreement was made between the Melbourne University and the Royal Academy of Music in London for the establishment of a scheme for the examination of all students for the London diploma in musical studies. At that time Professor Elgar, the well-known Australian composer, was appointed to be Director of the scheme in this country, and all the initial stages of the scheme were carried out satisfactorily. The Melbourne University authorities have now decided to send two students to Adelaide to study music under the guidance of the organising committee of the scheme (Mr. H. A. Thompson, who has been connected with the Royal Academy of Music for many years).

The scheme is designed to give students in this country the opportunity of studying under the best teachers and of gaining the highest qualifications in music. The scheme is open to students of all ages and backgrounds, and is designed to cater for the needs of both professional musicians and amateurs.

The scheme is expected to begin in the autumn of this year, and students are now invited to apply for admission to the scheme. The application form is available from the Melbourne University Registrar's Office, and should be completed and submitted by the 31st of October.
