During his visit to Adelaide, Mr. H. A. Thomson, the Melbourne Conservatorium of Music, met at the University of Adelaide on Wednesday afternoon as an extension of his recent University tour. He gave a lecture on the subject of Music Education in the University, and also held a master-class in harmony. The audience was large, and the lecture and class were most enthusiastically received.

At the conclusion of the lecture, Mr. Thomson, in reply to questions from the students, said that he was in Adelaide to establish a Conservatorium of Music. He had been invited to Adelaide by the University authorities, and was most welcome to Adelaide. The University was pleased to have Mr. Thomson as a guest, and was pleased to have him as a friend. He said that the University was anxious to have a Conservatorium of Music, and was anxious to have Mr. Thomson as its director. He said that he was looking forward to establishing a Conservatorium of Music in Adelaide, and that he was confident that it would be successful.

Mr. Thomson also gave a master-class in harmony, and was much impressed by the ability of the students. He said that he was pleased to have had the opportunity to meet the students, and that he was confident that they would make excellent musicians. He said that he was looking forward to working with the students, and that he was confident that they would make excellent musicians.

Mr. Thomson also gave a lecture on the subject of Music Education in the University, and was much impressed by the students. He said that he was pleased to have had the opportunity to meet the students, and that he was confident that they would make excellent musicians. He said that he was looking forward to working with the students, and that he was confident that they would make excellent musicians.

The lecture and class were most enthusiastically received, and Mr. Thomson was much pleased with the students. He said that he was confident that they would make excellent musicians, and that he was looking forward to working with them.

University of Adelaide

Centre formed at Mount Barker.

On Friday evening a public meeting was held in the University of Adelaide, at the invitation of Mr. L. von Donner, Vice-Chancellor, to explain the new method of working the centre. The formation of the centre was a very great honor and benefit to the district, and the establishment of the centre would be a good thing for the place, people, and candidates. Mr. L. von Donner, Vice-Chancellor, explained the new method of working the centre. The centre would be open to all candidates who were interested in the work, and the centre would be of great benefit to the district. Mr. L. von Donner, Vice-Chancellor, said that the centre would be of great benefit to the district, and that the centre would be of great benefit to the candidates who were interested in the work.

The centre would be open to all candidates who were interested in the work, and the centre would be of great benefit to the district. Mr. L. von Donner, Vice-Chancellor, said that the centre would be of great benefit to the district, and that the centre would be of great benefit to the candidates who were interested in the work.

The centre would be open to all candidates who were interested in the work, and the centre would be of great benefit to the district. Mr. L. von Donner, Vice-Chancellor, said that the centre would be of great benefit to the district, and that the centre would be of great benefit to the candidates who were interested in the work.

The centre would be open to all candidates who were interested in the work, and the centre would be of great benefit to the district. Mr. L. von Donner, Vice-Chancellor, said that the centre would be of great benefit to the district, and that the centre would be of great benefit to the candidates who were interested in the work.

The centre would be open to all candidates who were interested in the work, and the centre would be of great benefit to the district. Mr. L. von Donner, Vice-Chancellor, said that the centre would be of great benefit to the district, and that the centre would be of great benefit to the candidates who were interested in the work.

The centre would be open to all candidates who were interested in the work, and the centre would be of great benefit to the district. Mr. L. von Donner, Vice-Chancellor, said that the centre would be of great benefit to the district, and that the centre would be of great benefit to the candidates who were interested in the work.

The centre would be open to all candidates who were interested in the work, and the centre would be of great benefit to the district. Mr. L. von Donner, Vice-Chancellor, said that the centre would be of great benefit to the district, and that the centre would be of great benefit to the candidates who were interested in the work.

The centre would be open to all candidates who were interested in the work, and the centre would be of great benefit to the district. Mr. L. von Donner, Vice-Chancellor, said that the centre would be of great benefit to the district, and that the centre would be of great benefit to the candidates who were interested in the work.

The centre would be open to all candidates who were interested in the work, and the centre would be of great benefit to the district. Mr. L. von Donner, Vice-Chancellor, said that the centre would be of great benefit to the district, and that the centre would be of great benefit to the candidates who were interested in the work.

The centre would be open to all candidates who were interested in the work, and the centre would be of great benefit to the district. Mr. L. von Donner, Vice-Chancellor, said that the centre would be of great benefit to the district, and that the centre would be of great benefit to the candidates who were interested in the work.