

PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

To the Editor.

Sir—I was pleased to see in your issue of this morning "Quousque Tandem's" letter re University examinations, and to recall your interesting leaders concerning cramming. Mr. Girlestone deserves the highest credit for calling attention to the matter, and may his courage be duly rewarded. As your correspondent remarks, the tests (?) are contemptible and beneath the dignity of a university. Judging by the physics paper for the senior exam., the professor was evidently asked to prepare a paper to include questions on what the student did not know, or had not been taught, because no less than 20 per cent. (or two out of ten) of the questions referred to matters not to be found in the text-book; and of which consequently the student had no knowledge. May we not therefore ask if the examination is a test of the boy's ignorance as well as his knowledge?

I am, Sir, &c.,

DISGUSTED.
