To the Editor,

It would be well for the Education Commissioner to take notice of the evidence of schoolmasters in favor of giving the children five days a week. It must be obvious to all teachers that the schoolboys have been very inconvenience at the schools and that there have never been any considerable number of the children present in school for the last five days. As I have been here for a year or two, I have always been aware that there are but few children present in school for the last five days. It must also be apparent to any one that the number of the children present in school for the last five days has been very small. It must also be apparent to any one that the number of the children present in school for the last five days has been very small.

Yours truly,

E. HOWARD
