Public Examiners' Reports.

ADVICE TO STUDENTS.

The final examination of the Public Examiners, who have examined the candidates at the Adelaide High School for the coming year, has just been completed. The following interesting and valuable notices are printed in full, as they are considered of special interest to the parents and students of the school.

---

Primary Examination.

English. There were few excellent papers in the English examination. The candidates had evidently not written more than the usual number of foolscap sheets, which is a serious detriment. Many of the failures have not written the full number of sheets prescribed. They had not, moreover, made any attempt to show the examiner their handwriting. It is a pity that the candidates were not required to write a fair copy of their papers. Much time is lost in correcting the writing, for which no mark can be given. The arrangement of the papers was not satisfactory, and it is not possible to draw any conclusions as to the ability of the candidates from the examination copies.

Botany. In the Botany examination, the candidates had not been taught to draw a straight line and to explain the shape and size of plants. It is evident that the candidate understands the essential parts of a flower and their function in a particular sense. Botany is the study of plants. In the examination, the candidates were required to write a short note on the physiological development of plants. A great number of the papers showed that the candidates were not able to understand the general principles of plant development.

Modern History. As usual most of the papers were written by the higher candidates. The papers were well written, and the candidates showed a good knowledge of the subject. Some candidates were evidently not prepared for the examination, and their papers were not well written. The candidates were asked to write a short note on the history of the country and the relations of the country to foreign countries. The candidates were asked to write a short note on the history of the country and the relations of the country to foreign countries.

Junior Examination.

History. The failure of the candidates in the Junior Examination is due to the fact that they did not study the subject properly. The candidates had not been taught to draw a straight line and to explain the shape and size of plants. It is evident that the candidate understands the essential parts of a flower and their function in a particular sense. Botany is the study of plants. In the examination, the candidates were required to write a short note on the physiological development of plants. A great number of the papers showed that the candidates were not able to understand the general principles of plant development.

The candidates were asked to write a short note on the history of the country and the relations of the country to foreign countries. The candidates were asked to write a short note on the history of the country and the relations of the country to foreign countries.

---

ROYAL COMMISSIONS BUSY.

The University and Hig School Education Commission, which was appointed by the Government, is now busy examining the University and High School Education in the Commonwealth. The Commission is composed of three members, Mr. E. J. Brown, Mr. J. H. Brown, and Mr. J. H. Brown. The Commission is now busy examining the University and High School Education in the Commonwealth. The Commission is composed of three members, Mr. E. J. Brown, Mr. J. H. Brown, and Mr. J. H. Brown.