and useful words. We have in our offices and in our members' homes well qualified executives, who can very easily be trained to deal with many of the problems which come within the province of the society. We believe that the society should be a leading force in the education of its members and in the development of the profession, and we shall be happy to cooperate with the society in any way that we can. We are grateful for the opportunity to be of service to the society, and we shall do our best to help it to achieve its objects.

The President's Address.

The President, Mr. J. H. Niemann, Chancellor of the University of Melbourne, in his address on Thursday, May 20, referred to the various activities of the society during the past year. He said that the society had expanded its activities and had taken on a new role in the education of its members. He also mentioned the importance of research and the need for the society to support research in the field of dentistry.

The President then turned to the subject of the future of the society. He said that the society had a bright future ahead of it and that it would continue to grow and to develop. He also mentioned the need for the society to be more active in the community and to take a more active role in the promotion of dental health.

The President concluded his address by expressing his thanks to the members of the society for their support and by encouraging them to continue to work together for the betterment of the profession.
