ANTARCTIC ANECDOTES

CHIEF JUSTICE A VOLUNTEER.

"HOW DO WE WIPED THE PLATES?"

Bad Lieutenant Shackleton been given his chance on Monday night whether he would prefer to stay in the South Pole station or to walk up Brodie, C. T., and confine himself to the wireless. He accepted the offer and left the station on Wednesday.

The Sir Daniel was given his last chance on Monday night whether he would prefer to stay in the South Pole station or to walk up Brodie, C. T., and confine himself to the wireless. He accepted the offer and left the station on Wednesday.

AFTER THE SOUTH POLE.

SOME VOYAGES SINCE 1770.

An instructive and succinct record has been given of the voyages which have taken place since 1770 to the South Pole, and in view of Lieutenant Shackleton's visit, a list of some of these voyages since 1770 is doubly interesting.

James Cook, with the Resolution and Adventure, discovered New Zealand in 1769, and charted the coast of New Zealand in 1770. During the winter of 1770-1771, the Resolution and Adventure were sent to the South Pole, and in 1772 they were sent to the South Pole again.

Admiral Bellingshausen, with the Vostok and Mir, in 1813-1815, was the first to reach the South Pole, and since that time the South Pole has been visited by many expeditions, among which was the British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-1909, under Sir Ernest Shackleton, who reached the South Pole on December 31, 1908.

James Weddell, with the James Weddell, in 1813-1814, was the first to reach the South Pole, and since that time the South Pole has been visited by many expeditions, among which was the British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-1909, under Sir Ernest Shackleton, who reached the South Pole on December 31, 1908.

Dumont d'Urville, with the Terre Adélie, in 1813-1814, was the first to reach the South Pole, and since that time the South Pole has been visited by many expeditions, among which was the British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-1909, under Sir Ernest Shackleton, who reached the South Pole on December 31, 1908.

Charles Wilkes, with the American Exploring Expedition, 1833-1842, discovered and mapped a large tract of land within the Antarctic circle.

James Clark Ross, with the Erebus and Terror, 1839-1843, discovered and mapped a large tract of land within the Antarctic circle.

Admiral De Gerlache, in the Belgica, 1895-1896, discovered and mapped a large tract of land within the Antarctic circle.

A Belgian expedition, the Belgica, 1895-1896, discovered and mapped a large tract of land within the Antarctic circle.

Robert Falcon Scott, with the Discovery, 1901-1904, discovered and mapped a large tract of land within the Antarctic circle.

In 1904, the ship was wrecked on the Ross Ice Shelf, and all the crew perished. The expedition was later rescued by the British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-1909, under Sir Ernest Shackleton, who reached the South Pole on December 31, 1908.

The British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-1909, under Sir Ernest Shackleton, was the first to reach the South Pole, and since that time the South Pole has been visited by many expeditions, among which was the British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-1909, under Sir Ernest Shackleton, who reached the South Pole on December 31, 1908.

The British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-1909, under Sir Ernest Shackleton, was the first to reach the South Pole, and since that time the South Pole has been visited by many expeditions, among which was the British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-1909, under Sir Ernest Shackleton, who reached the South Pole on December 31, 1908.

The British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-1909, under Sir Ernest Shackleton, was the first to reach the South Pole, and since that time the South Pole has been visited by many expeditions, among which was the British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-1909, under Sir Ernest Shackleton, who reached the South Pole on December 31, 1908.

The British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-1909, under Sir Ernest Shackleton, was the first to reach the South Pole, and since that time the South Pole has been visited by many expeditions, among which was the British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-1909, under Sir Ernest Shackleton, who reached the South Pole on December 31, 1908.