TONIGHT' PLAY............

DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE is essentially a light-hearted comedy written in 1954 by Ted Willis. It is based on the novel by Richard Gordon, who also wrote the other "Doctor........." novels. The 1955 film was also based on this novel. The play is set in the most respectable???? hospital lodgings used permanently and casually by three medical students and female companions - lover, nurses, and otherwise.

The play is designed in its authentic era with application to the modern theatre-in-the-round.

Tony and John have been living together for a couple of years when Sir Lancelot, the oldest, best, and most respected and/or dreaded surgeon at St. Swithin's Hospital, practically forces his nephew, Simon, upon them. This causes no problems, though, as John, a rugger fiend, realises the potential of this new student and Tony, a sex fanatic(?) feels he is able to instruct this callow youth in the art of seduction. Tony's girlfriend, Vera, who is played as a French girl in our production, seems to like Simon but even so, she is not taken aback at a chance to tease him a little - his embarrassment will amuse her.

The play moves on and we are introduced to Bromley, the hospital porter, who, after many many years in the hospital, feels he is virtually a qualified doctor. Then there is Miss Winslow (Riggle), a nurse, who is an eccentric type: simple and dumb. The bare essentials of life are fine for her. She becomes absolutely confused about who is dating her but cares little. Matron, a very big woman, shows that she can be very biting but when things are going her way, and Sir Lancelot's nephew and her niece are to be married, she shows her 'other-side'. Her niece, Janet, is introduced late in the play - there is a business-like streak in her character and she knows what she wants and is determined to get it - this time it's Simon. Sir Lancelot is against the union of his family to the Matron's and with the help of the students, Bromley, Vera and Riggle, he manages to disrupt the whole affair.

The play ends on a happy note........ the students have to start studying for their exams!
