EVENING OF SHORT PLAYS

BY

PIRANDELLO
LADY GREGORY
O'NEILL

AT THE HUT
Monday - December 15
Tuesday - December 16
1947
The three plays presented tonight are by authors who each in his own way altered the course of the theatre in his own country.

A new play by Eugene O'Neill is still an event of importance in the United States, and some of his plays have introduced a new period in the American theatre.

Pirandello, following the lead of Luigi Chiozzi who startled the Italian theatre in 1914 with "The Mask and the Face," produced a series of plays which made the older sentimental drama no longer possible.

Lady Gregory was really responsible for the early success of the Abbey Theatre. But for her great good sense and tact, the theatre would not have succeeded. Her plays are examples of concise, dramatic writing and are gems of characterisation. No author has so sympathetically written of Irish national character—not even Synge himself.

Each of the authors represented tonight has thought the one-act play worthy of his best efforts.
