PRODUCER'S NOTE

The plot of each of to-night's plays is different, and yet each is subtly linked in theme.

Tennessee Williams, in all his published work, is concerned with harsh reality and the effort made by the individual to escape that reality by entering into illusion.

The producer hopes that you will accept our particular world of theatre illusion perhaps even to the extent of feeling, by the end of to-night's performance, that you have seen four acts of a single play, the end-plot of which is still in the writing.
