Every member of the expedition said pleasant and complimentary things about the par excellence had been one which would have done the party much good. The party had, however, been very pleasant and the weather was kind. The party had been well cared for and the food had been excellent. The party had a good time and everyone was well satisfied.

The Ark of the Lord arrived at the station on the 20th of November. The party was well received and everyone was pleased with the arrangements.

ORGANIZING THE EXPEDITION.

Dr. Mawson, who was in charge of the mineralogy and petrology, at the Adelaide University, was appointed to be in charge of the expedition. The party had been well organized and was ready to set out.

CONGRATULATIONS.

The news that Dr. Mawson and his party were about to leave Adelaide was well received by the people of South Australia, and particularly by the residents of Adelaide. Everyone was well pleased with the arrangements and everyone was pleased to see the party set out on its voyage.
