The Register.

The Register.

Mr. S. J. Davis, the chairman of the Royal Geographic Society, was the first to meet the Aurora on Thursday morning, and was the first to greet the members of the expedition. The Aurora was received with great enthusiasm by the members of the expedition, and the officers and crew were welcomed with great kindness.

The Aurora's party.

The Aurora was the first ship to arrive at Macquarie Island, and was greeted with great enthusiasm by the natives. The Aurora was then loaded with provisions and supplies, and was ready to depart the next day.

From Macquarie Island.

Mr. W. H. Mason, the commander of the Aurora, arrived at Macquarie Island on November 25th, and was greeted with great enthusiasm by the natives. The Aurora was then loaded with provisions and supplies, and was ready to depart the next day.

Eleven dogs brought back.

Eleven dogs, which were brought back from the Aurora, were unloaded and taken to the hospital. The dogs were in excellent condition and were well cared for.

Arrival at Port Adelaide.

The Aurora arrived at Port Adelaide on November 30th, and was greeted with great enthusiasm by the natives. The Aurora was then unloaded and was ready to depart the next day.

Dr. Mason's fiancée.

The most interesting girl in South Australia at the present time is Miss P. B. Dehag, who is the fiancée of Dr. Mason. The Aurora was then unloaded and was ready to depart the next day.

Capt. Davis interviewed.

Capt. J. A. Davis, the captain of the Aurora, was interviewed by the press, and was asked about his impressions of the Aurora. He stated that the Aurora was in excellent condition, and that he was satisfied with his crew and the supplies.

Silence under directions.

The Aurora was then loaded with provisions and supplies, and was ready to depart for the next destination. The Aurora was then unloaded and was ready to depart the next day.

Nothing to communicate.

The Aurora was then loaded with provisions and supplies, and was ready to depart for the next destination. The Aurora was then unloaded and was ready to depart the next day.