THE PRESENT DAY.

AS THE GOVERNOR SEEKS IT.

A THOUGHTFUL SPEECH.

FAREWELL TO THE UNIVERSITY.

His Excellency the Governor delivered a farewell speech at Wednesday's commencement exercises. He described the University as a thoughtful, well-considered, and wise institution. He remarked upon the progress and excellence of the students, and emphasized the need for continued support and improvement.

What is the status of women in modern society?

The women's movement has made significant strides, particularly in the areas of education and employment. Women have gained the right to vote, and there are more opportunities for women in the workforce. However, there are still challenges, particularly in the realm of education and equal pay. Women continue to face discrimination and inequality in many aspects of society.

The University's Responsibility

In pursuing the truth of knowledge, the University has a responsibility to contribute to the advancement of civilization. It is the duty of the University to prepare the students for leadership roles in society. The University must ensure that its graduates are well-equipped to address the challenges of the modern world. This includes providing a comprehensive and diverse curriculum that prepares students for the demands of the 21st century.

However, it must be acknowledged that the University's primary responsibility is to education, not to act as a political or social reformer. While the University may have a role in contributing to social change, it should not become involved in political or social activism.

The Modern Battlefront

Take a moment to consider the current battlefront. The battle is not just on the field of battle, but in the minds of those who seek to influence the course of events. The battle is fought by the pen, the word, and the mind. It is a battle of ideas, a battle of values, and a battle of moral principles. The battle is fought by the University, and it is our responsibility to ensure that we are prepared to meet the challenges of the modern world.

The quality of perseverance you have a character which, guided by the principles of earnestness, sincerity, truth, and perseverance, will carry you far in the direction of sympathy and interest in those objects which aim at social progress and elevation. (Appendix)

The Path of Duty

You who have been educated in this University know well that every action of your life should be influenced by higher motives, by greater principles, as the path you ever follow before you, which leads to thoughts and actions tending to ennoble human nature and to dignify human life, by teaching that we shall follow in the footsteps of the great men who have preceded us, and putting aside all thoughts of personal aggrandizement or selfish gain, use always our best endeavor to do that which is right and true, and that which is our duty, that which is for the benefit of our fellowmen. In conclusion, I beg to offer my most cordial and sincere congratulations to those who are about to receive the honors to be bestowed upon them by the Chancellor, the just rewards of their intelligence, zeal, and industry.
