WORKERS' EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION

GRANT OF £1,000 ASKED FOR

MINISTER PROMISES TO CONSIDER REQUEST.

That the Workers' Educational Association is determined to push on with its objects, is demonstrated by the approval of the following: a grant of £1,000, contributed by the government. This grant, amounting to £100, was granted in 1912. Between 1880 and 1901 not a penny was received as a contribution for building purposes. Taking the amounts granted as a basis for all other contributions, it becomes evident that the Workers Educational Association, South Australia, should have received—taking the example of the University of Victoria (£200,000) or that of New South Wales (£100,000) or even that of the University of London (£50,000)—the grant of £200,000 would have been justified. But as far as this grant was concerned, it was greater than that of the University of Victoria. The latter institution had reached a state of large financial standing, and the sum of £200,000 was absolutely necessary if it was intended to keep it abreast of the times.

A Debt Balance.

The remarks were endorsed by Professor Chapman, of the University, and Mr. D. W. Brown, of the arts society, who declared that the University should have received at least £100,000, and that if the government had not been satisfied with the amount, the balance should have been paid.

A Sympathetic Reply.

The Premier replied that he recognized the importance of the subject. The government was willing to extend further financial assistance to the University, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The government was willing to make a grant of £200,000, but it was necessary to consider the financial position of the University and its ability to raise the necessary funds. The govern