

to-day with the Hon. Premier. Subsequently told Captain Davis around from Hobart. I was available for her. I did not see the advice of Prof Henderson, as it was so late, I did not send it.

see the report in the Mail fortnight after it appeared. I then following but on 31st July, 1913. Mrs R. Hoady

Dear Mr. Moody,-

Early in the month a Reporter came to me for some information in regard to Extension Lectures, with the result that a report appeared in the "Mail" of July 5th. Although I take the "Mail" this report was missed by me until a few days ago. It is quite accurate and good but for a few lines, and to these I must take exception. The portion I complain of reads as under:-

"No, he said in answer to an opening query, we here are not like the Victorian folk - we do not allow what we know to be a good thing, and one which is appreciated by the public, to go back. Our motto is "Progress" with a capital P."

This paragraph is not fair to me, and those who know me would not credit me with this supercilious vapouring. What I did say was, that so far as this University was concerned the demands for courses of Extension Lectures if anything increased, and that we had all we could do to meet such demands. I did not talk of "Progress with a big P."

Although it is rather belated I shall be obliged if you will kindly cause the enclosed letter to be inserted in Saturday's "Mail".

Yours faithfully,

Registrar.
