RESIDENTIAL FACILITIES

MR. E. B. SARGANT'S SCHEME

From The Arena of June

The undoubted desirability of providing adequate residential accommodation with every university is again brought out in the report of the technical commission on university education in London. Dr. Sargent, London's has set a bad example in this respect, and his report suggests that the university buildings be converted into residence. Thus, the hostels would be improved in their general plan, and the new college would not overstep the limits of the old college.

The scheme, however, is not confined to the main university buildings. It is aimed at improving the whole system of residence colleges. The hostels are situated far away, and they are not in close proximity to the university buildings. The college will not be overcrowded, and the students will have the opportunity of living in the best house and college.

In conclusion, Dr. Sargent, a member of the royal commission, whose work is now in progress, has made a profound study of the conditions of university residence. He has found that the best system of residence accommodation is the one that is planned and executed with care. He has recommended that the university should provide residence accommodation in close proximity to the university buildings, and that the college should be provided with adequate facilities for residence accommodation.

In this connection, Dr. Sargent, a member of the royal commission, whose work is now in progress, has made a profound study of the conditions of university residence. He has found that the best system of residence accommodation is the one that is planned and executed with care. He has recommended that the university should provide residence accommodation in close proximity to the university buildings, and that the college should be provided with adequate facilities for residence accommodation.

In conclusion, Dr. Sargent, a member of the royal commission, whose work is now in progress, has made a profound study of the conditions of university residence. He has found that the best system of residence accommodation is the one that is planned and executed with care. He has recommended that the university should provide residence accommodation in close proximity to the university buildings, and that the college should be provided with adequate facilities for residence accommodation.

The three factors essential for the very existence of any institution of learning are (1) a proper system of residence accommodation, (2) a proper system of residence accommodation, and (3) the college should be provided with adequate facilities for residence accommodation.

In conclusion, Dr. Sargent, a member of the royal commission, whose work is now in progress, has made a profound study of the conditions of university residence. He has found that the best system of residence accommodation is the one that is planned and executed with care. He has recommended that the university should provide residence accommodation in close proximity to the university buildings, and that the college should be provided with adequate facilities for residence accommodation.

In conclusion, Dr. Sargent, a member of the royal commission, whose work is now in progress, has made a profound study of the conditions of university residence. He has found that the best system of residence accommodation is the one that is planned and executed with care. He has recommended that the university should provide residence accommodation in close proximity to the university buildings, and that the college should be provided with adequate facilities for residence accommodation.

In conclusion, Dr. Sargent, a member of the royal commission, whose work is now in progress, has made a profound study of the conditions of university residence. He has found that the best system of residence accommodation is the one that is planned and executed with care. He has recommended that the university should provide residence accommodation in close proximity to the university buildings, and that the college should be provided with adequate facilities for residence accommodation.

In conclusion, Dr. Sargent, a member of the royal commission, whose work is now in progress, has made a profound study of the conditions of university residence. He has found that the best system of residence accommodation is the one that is planned and executed with care. He has recommended that the university should provide residence accommodation in close proximity to the university buildings, and that the college should be provided with adequate facilities for residence accommodation.