WHY NOT LOOK AHEAD?

Disposition of Public Lands.

Confusion Worse Confounded.

[By a Special Correspondent]

Mr. Alexander's position in the present crisis is a most enviable one. It is that of being able to put his plume in the breeze of public affection and, without any regard to the exigencies of the case, to demand the utmost from the public purse. He has, indeed, so far satisfied the public that he is likely to succeed in the election, and the government which he heads is likely to be returned at the next election. The government which he leads is likely to be returned at the next election. The government which he leads is likely to be returned at the next election.

The government which he leads is likely to be returned at the next election.

But there is another side to the picture. The government which he leads is likely to be returned at the next election. The government which he leads is likely to be returned at the next election.

But there is another side to the picture. The government which he leads is likely to be returned at the next election. The government which he leads is likely to be returned at the next election.
