TAXPAYER'S CRY. ABOUT THE CONSERVATION TITHE.

IS IT LOSING £1,000 A YEAR?

To the Editor of The Mail:

As the price of land has increased, the income from the University of Adelaide has also increased. The University's income from this source was shown to be £1,000 a year, which is a considerable sum. Yet, the Editor comments that this income could be increased by £500 a year if the University were to take more receipts from the tenants.

Editor, Sir,

The issue of the University of Adelaide's property is important to the community. It is a matter of concern that the University's income is not being maximized. I would suggest that the University could take more receipts from the tenants and increase its income.

Yours sincerely,

[Signature]

UNIVERSITY OF ADELAIDE.

JUNIOR PUBLIC EXAMINATION 1911.

A. G. LEAT.

[Editorial note: The Junior Public Examination results are presented in detail, including names and marks of the students who passed.]