ARRIVAL OF MR. BRYCE.

The Right Hon. James Bryce (Ambassador of Great Britain at Washington) and his wife arrived in Adelaide by the S.S. "Canada", on Sunday morning. Mr. Bryce and Mrs. Bryce travelled in the Victorian State car, and special arrangements were made to accommodate them at Government House. Mr. Bryce is Commissioner of South Australia. The train was near an hour late, but a disturbance at the station prevented anyone from greeting the renowned statesman, including the Chief Justice (Sir Samual Ward), the Prime Minister (Mr. Lilley), the Chief Secretary (Hon. J. G. Birr), Captain Fletcher, A.D.C. to the Governor, the Mayor of Adelaide (Mr. Livington Bonython), and members of the Adelaide City Council, the town clerk (Mr. T. M. Ewen), Professor Henderson, Chapman, Jethro Brown, and Kerr Grant, and Mr. W. H. Howells, of the Adelaide University; the Hon. F. L. Willis, M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Lidgett (associate to the Chief Justice). Mr. Bryce, active for his cause, expressed cheerfully to the greetings of the Chief Justice and the other gentlemen who were present, to him and his wife. Mr. Bryce appeared to him and gave him a very pleasant appearance that is by his activity. He received with warmth and a smile the general welcome of all, and his honors and achievements seemed to weigh but lightly upon his broad shoulders. Mr. Bryce appeared to be on particularly triumphant andcordial terms. Mr. Bryce, the Governor of the Colony of Natal, where he and his wife will be the guests of his Excellency the Governor and Lady Boscombe during their stay in Adelaide.

A CIVIC WELCOME.

Mr. Bryce was tendered a civic welcome at 11.30 a.m. by the Mayor of Adelaide (Mr. Livington Bonython) in the council chamber in the presence of a large and enthusiastic gathering. Amongst those present were the Lieutenant-Governor (Sir Samual Ward), the Premier (Hon. J. G. Birr), Acting Justice Buchanan, the Speaker of the House of Assembly (Hon. J. L. O'Loughlin), Sir John Downer, Mr. E. J. Smith, Mr. Charles Goode, and Captain G. J. Chamberlain.

The Mayor said he rose with much satisfaction because he appreciated the great honor which had come to him as Mayor of Adelaide in being called on to extend to Mr. Bryce a civic welcome. He voiced the feelings of the citizens generally with reference to the visit of Mr. Bryce and Mrs. Bryce. He said that there were those who probably would not be so pleased as his heart, parts of the Commonwealth Constitution (Cherms), who would see the visit in a different light, and that he could well see the visit in a different light, and that he could well see the visit in a different light, but he would gladly see the visit in a different light. At one time it was thought that the premier of South Australia was to be abroad for the benefit of the Commonwealth, and it was found later that the duty of an ambassador was to be abroad for the benefit of the Commonwealth.

Welcome by Commercial Men.

Mr. John. T. Daley, acting president of the Commercial Men's Association, tendered a welcome on behalf of the Commercial Men.

Mr. Bryce then spoke on the development of the British Empire. His remarks were made with the closest attention, and at the close a number of those present felt that the speech was worthy of being recorded, where Mr. Bryce's health with milk and
