EVENING MEETING.

ADDRESSES BY GOVERNOR AND PRESIDENT OF THE UNIVERSITY.

Brookman Hall was again the scene of a large gathering in the evening on the occasion of the meeting of the conference of the University. The President, Mr. C. W. Brooke, and Mr. J. H. M. Smith, both of the University, were present at the meeting, and there was a large number of members of the University present.

Training Skilled Workmen.

At the meeting, a discussion took place on the subject of training skilled workmen. It was pointed out that the demand for skilled workmen was increasing, and that it was necessary to train a large number of men to meet this demand. The President expressed the opinion that the University should take a leading part in the training of skilled workmen, and that it should be encouraged to do so by the Government.

Maintain Vigilant Watch.

His Excellency, the Governor, who was warmly cheered on entering the hall, said it was his privilege to welcome to the conference the representatives of the schools, who had been invited to the meeting. He expressed the hope that the conference would be a success, and that it would be useful in the development of the character of the children.

The annual gathering was one of the highest interests of the community, and was an immediate concern, but also to the general community. The conference would be a valuable occasion for the members of the public schools to meet and exchange views on the important questions of education.

His Excellency concluded by expressing the hope that the conference would be a success, and that it would be useful in the development of the character of the children.

"Wake Up and Keep Awake."

The President of the University referred to the importance of education, and said that it was essential for the future of the country. He emphasized the need for a more efficient system of education, and suggested that the University should take a leading part in the development of education in the country.

The Educational Vote.

Not many years ago there were some even in South Australia who were opposed to educational expenditure. But those days were gone. The several Governments had seen the necessity of providing education for the people, and they had done so.

An Enlightened Democracy.

Government by an enlightened and enlightened democracy, aided by the referendum, is the only way in which the problems of a modern state can be solved. The referendum, which is the last word in sociological science, is a great step forward.

In conclusion, the President expressed the hope that the conference would be a success, and that it would be useful in the development of the character of the children.

The Conference was adjourned.
