scholarship the way to a University. In fact, that subject of his choice should be made easy, and that no one is better able to give evidence of such encouragement than the very next door. Free trade in knowledge is evidently the way to solve that problem. No one is better able to appreciate that point than the Chairman of the Board of Education. Another question concerns the treatment of teachers. If a Professor, an Associate Professor, and a Professor are appointed as associate professors, there is no question of the problem. Another question concerns the interchange of teachers. If the two, three, or the four, Universities were to have the opportunity of attending his courses, the interchange of teachers would be facilitated and the students of the two, or the three, Universities would benefit. The exchange of teachers would be so greatly widened that no one is better able to appreciate the difficulty of the whole question than the Chairman of the Board of Education. The difficulty of the whole question is resolved by the Chairman of the Board of Education. The difficulty of the whole question is resolved by the Chairman of the Board of Education. The difficulty of the whole question is resolved by the Chairman of the Board of Education.

New Responsibilities.

Many large questions concern all Universities, although they are not all of them properly so classified. There is also a University question," the answer given to which will affect profoundly the future of a University in the East, was proposed as a subject for discussion by Sir Frederick Lugard, Governor of the Colony of Nigeria and President of the new University. The delegates of Indian Universities who will attend the Congress are called for a meeting to discuss the problem of the new University and for exchange of experiences amongst the representatives of Indian Universities which have faced the problem of the new University.

The problem of the influence on character and moral ideals, in the case of the new University in the East, was proposed as a subject for discussion by Sir Frederick Lugard, Governor of the Colony of Nigeria and President of the new University. The delegates of Indian Universities who will attend the Congress are called for a meeting to discuss the problem of the new University and for exchange of experiences amongst the representatives of Indian Universities which have faced the problem of the new University.

The problem of the influence on character and moral ideals, in the case of the new University in the East, was proposed as a subject for discussion by Sir Frederick Lugard, Governor of the Colony of Nigeria and President of the new University. The delegates of Indian Universities who will attend the Congress are called for a meeting to discuss the problem of the new University and for exchange of experiences amongst the representatives of Indian Universities which have faced the problem of the new University.

Women in Universities.

The position of women in Universities opens up so many questions that the Congress will probably find it difficult to deal with these questions and any possible action to the best interests of women students. In what respects and to what extent do they require different treatment from the men? What are the results of the careful arrangements for their attendance at lectures and work? The Congress is open to discussion and definition of these questions based upon experience regarding the desirability of making special provisions, or making no special provisions, or making such provisions as will be of value. The rights and privileges of women who have graduated or who are ex-students are of considerable interest but which the Congress has not been able to consider.

Many other matters of importance to particular Universities or to Universities generally have been discussed at length. The shaded provinces of the Central Universities have been discussed, but the most important questions to be dealt with are those of the larger universities. The Association of the Universities of the East has been dealt with by the Congress. The Congress has also heard a paper on the methods of teaching in the Universities of the East. The degree of control which a University should exercise over its teaching is one of the most limited of the important questions to be dealt with. The Congress is open to discussion and definition of these questions based upon experience regarding the desirability of making special provisions, or making no special provisions, or making such provisions as will be of value. The rights and privileges of women who have graduated or who are ex-students are of considerable interest but which the Congress has not been able to consider.

Many other matters of importance to particular Universities or to Universities generally have been discussed at length. The shaded provinces of the Central Universities have been discussed, but the most important questions to be dealt with are those of the larger universities. The Association of the Universities of the East has been dealt with by the Congress. The Congress has also heard a paper on the methods of teaching in the Universities of the East. The degree of control which a University should exercise over its teaching is one of the most limited of the important questions to be dealt with. The Congress is open to discussion and definition of these questions based upon experience regarding the desirability of making special provisions, or making no special provisions, or making such provisions as will be of value. The rights and privileges of women who have graduated or who are ex-students are of considerable interest but which the Congress has not been able to consider.

UNIVERSITY INTELLIGENCE.

DURHAM, Feb. 17.

GIFT TO ARMSMOUTH COLLEGE.

A meeting of the Council of Armsmouth College was held yesterday afternoon, when Sir John Black, President, and Dr. Hadow, the Principal, announced that he had received from Mr. Clement Stephenson, a well-known philanthropist, a large bequest for the proposed buildings for a new agricultural department at the college to undertake advisory work among farmers. The bequest for the purpose of the new department has been placed at the invitation of the Board of Agriculture under the scheme proposed by the Development Committee.

The Council accepted Mr. Stephenson's offer with considerable gratitude. The buildings of the college, which will house the present agricultural department of the college, the head of which is Professor P., are very creditable, and the site has not yet been definitively fixed, but it will probably be within the college grounds.