SIDELIGHTS ON MODERN COMMERCE.

LECTURE AT THE UNIVERSITY.

An instructive lecture on "Company Law" was delivered in the Prince of Wales' Theatre, at the Adelaide University on Thursday last, by Mr. H. Y. Braden, a prominent Sydney commercial man. For the purpose of advancing the study of commerce, the Adelaide University has allotted a sum of £250, and the Chamber of Commerce £250, for the purpose of holding and promoting such sessions; and lectures are given in alternate years in the first instance by Mr. J. M. Howard, a barrister, and Mr. H. Y. Braden, respectively. Amongst the subscribers to the fund are Messrs. J. R. Bennet, Mr. J. W. Dodds, and Mr. W. A. Fowler (chairman of the board of commercial students) and the successful commercial students themselves.

Mr. Braden delivered an excellent lecture. The subject was presented with a clearness and a force which made it interesting and easily understood. He started by discussing the history of the subject, and then proceeded to deal with the various kinds of companies which exist. He pointed out that the modern company is a very important institution, and that it has played a great part in the development of modern commerce. He showed that the company is a very useful and convenient institution, and that it has been a great benefit to the community. He also pointed out that the company has been a great benefit to the individual, and that it has allowed him to have a greater degree of freedom in his business operations.

Mr. Braden then proceeded to discuss the various kinds of companies which exist. He pointed out the difference between the various kinds of companies, and he showed that the company is the most suitable kind of institution for modern commerce. He also pointed out the advantages of the company, and he showed that it is a very useful and convenient institution.
