Commencement Day.

There was a large attendance at the Exercises by the Officers of the University, on the occasion of the University Commencement Day, held on Thursday, November 28th, 1912. The Exercises were conducted by the Chancellor, the Right Hon. Sir Horace Mann. The first business of the day was the presentation of the Chancellor's Address. The honors were awarded to the following students:

- Bachelor of Laws: The Art Department of the Faculty of Law presented to the Chancellor, Donald Cameron (Law), George D. Maxwell (Law), and Allan McLean (Law), the degrees of Bachelor of Laws.
- Bachelor of Arts: The Faculty of Arts presented to the Chancellor, Donald Cameron (Arts), the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

The Chancellor also presented several students with medals and other honors for their outstanding achievements. The exercises concluded with a address by the President of the University, who praised the students for their hard work and dedication.

The University.

The Chancellor said they were not honored with the presence of His Excellency the Governor, but he was very glad to welcome the presence of Sir John Lauder, who had been a notable feature of the University at its inception. Sir John Lauder was an important figure in the history of the University, having been a member of the University's Board of Governors for many years.

The University also congratulated several students for their achievements. Among them were:

- Donald Cameron, who received the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
- George D. Maxwell, who received the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

The University also presented several students with medals and other honors for their outstanding achievements. The exercises concluded with a address by the President of the University, who praised the students for their hard work and dedication.
