The council of the University of Adelaide on Friday appointed Professor Chaplin to be the affiliation committee for the Rhodes Scholarship in place of Professor Darnley Naylor, who recently left for England.

Mr. D. Campbell, M.P., has passed the final examination for the Bachelor of Laws degree at the Adelaide University, and it will be conferred upon him at the commencement of the new course. Mr. Campbell is the third member of the South Australian Parliament who has qualified for admission to the bar, while he has also been carrying out his duties as a Member of Parliament. His first performance in the court was the late Mr. Lucas’ defense, which he won his L.L.B. degree with distinction, taking the third position in the two years of his course. Mr. Campbell is also a member of the University’s staff of lecturers, and he was one of the students of Mr. W. Monckton, who was also a candidate for admission.

Mr. John C. Monckton, the present Attorney General, has also been admitted to the bar, and Mr. Campbell has been appointed the legal advisor to the University. The Federal Attorney-General (Mr. W. M. Hughes) qualified for the bar after his election to the House of Representatives. Mr. Campbell has gone through his legal and difficult course at the University, and in the administration of his subjects he has obtained first-class results. He will be admitted to the bar in due course.

A ZEALOUS STUDENT.

In addition to having the degree of Bachelor of Arts conferred upon him by the hands of the Chancellor of the University of Adelaide yesterday, Mr. Harold Galt, the student who obtained the first place in the University scholarship for psychology and logic, has been awarded the coveted Rycraft Prize for the same subject.

Sir Samuel Way said Mr. Galt’s undergraduate work had made a notable impression on him. He had made himself acquainted with some of the particulars of Mr. Galt’s career, and in the whole history of the University of Adelaide he knew of no case in which there had been greater moral force, courage, persistence, and zeal for learning than had been shown by him. He had not been ashamed of the difficulties which he had encountered successfully. He had been allowed to continue his studies for years and had been a student for years at the University. He had turned in a coltish effort, and had then turned the study of a cabin boy on a boat that sailed to South Africa and back. The time he had spent on this study was a source of great pride to him, and a determination to become a useful man. By-and-by he had become a student at the University, and had won a University scholarship in 1910. Now, in addition to graduating as Bachelor of Arts, he had also obtained the degree of bachelor of science. It was a popular error to imagine that there was any antagonism between the University and the School of Mines, and he would be sorry if there was any unfriendly feeling against the University of Adelaide. Mr. Smith would now be a connecting link between the two great institutions.

A POPULAR ERROR.

At the University commemoration on Wednesday the Chancellor (Sir Samuel Way) said it gave him extreme pleasure to announce that Mr. Harold Galt had obtained the degree of bachelor of science. It was a popular error to imagine that there was any antagonism between the University and the School of Mines, and he would be sorry if there was any unfriendly feeling against the University of Adelaide. Mr. Smith would now be a connecting link between the two great institutions.
