A Glorious Fairy Tale for Children of All Ages
“WHITE CARGO”

Leon Gordon's famous play is not a conventionally pleasant play but it achieves undisputed greatness by virtue of its down-to-earth approach to life and through a determination to pull no punches in relating its lustful tale.

Written in the 20's the play met with instant success, and though many instances occurred whereby individuals, associations, and bodies agitated and petitioned to have the play banned, it survived and played to packed houses in most of the English-speaking countries.

It has not suffered in any sense by "dry rot" over the years and the revival of this highly controversial play with its truthful and daring theme will not revive very pleasant memories of twenty-five years ago but allow another generation to realise that those days were not so "prudish" as imagined.

Since the recent commencement of "WHITE CARGO"'s Australian season, it has broken "straight play" records—Adelaide audiences with their love of the live theatre cannot help but assist it break more.

“BEAUTY AND THE BEAST”
(MATINEES ONLY)

Nicholas Stuart Gray's version of the fairy-tale has an exhilarating freshness, and while it contains a good deal of light-hearted fun it also has serious and moving passages—and it is dramatic throughout. Its simplicity is of the best kind: the kind, that is, which is endearing to children and adults alike.

"BEAUTY AND THE BEAST" was first produced at the Mercury Theatre, London, for a Christmas season in December 1949 and this was followed by a West End presentation at the Westminster Theatre for the Christmas season 1953-1954.

'A delightful fresh and simplified version of that original fairy story, set picturesquely in Victorian times, it is told both visually and verbally in a glorious manner to appeal to children, with much humour and a lot of excitement!'

The war years played a big part in Hector Ross' life. He served throughout them in Italy, North Africa and Greece, and when demobilised in 1946, held the rank of Captain. He came back to England to appear in a war play, "All This is Ended," played in the Playhouse before H.M. the late King George VI and the Queen, and his performance in this resulted in a three-years' film contract with Sir Alexander Korda. J. C. W's PRODUCTION PLANS

J. C. Williamson's production plans for 1955 promise to make the New Year one of the most outstanding in the theatrical history of Australia.

The Big New J. C. W. Musical Production is "PAINT YOUR WAGON", which had its Australian premiere at Her Majesty's Theatre, Melbourne, on Saturday, November 27. This smash hit musical has as its theme the rollicking story of the Californian gold rush. The music is by Frederick Loewe and the story by Alan Jay Lerner (both of "Brigadoon" fame) and the production is under the direction of Mr. Danny O'Neil, who was brought out from England for this attraction. Miss Margaret Maxwell, Jack Hylton's principal choreographer, was also flown out from London to produce the ballets and ensembles. The cost of "PAINT YOUR WAGON" is headed by ALEC KELLYWAY in the role of Old Ben Burns" and LYNNY LYONS and RICHARD CURRY, two American artists, has been imported for the leading juvenile roles.

Well-known English artist, GOOGIE WITHERS, and her Australian-born husband, JOHN McCALLUM, have been signed by the Film for a tour of Australia; beginning in Melbourne in February next. The plays to be presented by these artists will be drawn from "SIMON AND LAURA", a new play by Alan Melville (author of "Dear Charles"), "THE DEEP BLUE SEA" and "WINTER'S JOURNEY".

Arrangements are also nearing finality in London for the presentation in Australia during 1955 of a Company from the OLD VIC, headed by Adelaide-born producer and dancer, ROBERT HELPMANN. It is anticipated that the repertoire of the OLD VIC tour will embrace two Shakespearean plays and one Shaw play, "TEAHOUSE OF THE AUGUST MOON", a play of world interest, which holds the New York Dramatic Critics' Circle award "Best Play of Year"-1955, will be presented following the Google Withers-John McCallum season.

Plans are well advanced by the Film for the presentation of a season of ITALIAN GRAND OPERA in Australia and New Zealand, beginning in Melbourne in March, 1955. J.C.W. Theatres' London Director, Mr. Nevil Tait, is now in Rome signing up Italian artists, and it is expected that seventy artists will be coming from Italy. In addition, provision is being made to incorporate in this Company a number of leading Australian artists who are at present overseas, and Australians will also fulfill the majority of minor roles, and as well as the entire chorus and orchestra. The estimations which have been taken out by J. C. Williamson Theatres Ltd. and the production in Music and Dramatic Arts Society, has guaranteed a tour from 13.000 to 15.000. (The repertoire will be drawn from the following operas): RIGOLETTO, TRAVIATA, IL TROVATORE, AIDA, OTHELLO, LA BOHEME, MADAM BUTTERFLY, TOSCA, TURANDOT, DON PASQUALE, LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR, BARBER OF SEVILLE, MANON, FAUST, TALES OF HOFFMAN and CARMEN. It is also hoped to stage some other operas seldom performed in Australia.

In addition to the above new productions, Adelaide audiences can also look forward to seeing three notable plays, all of which have won favor with audiences in the Eastern States during the past 12 months. The first of these is expected to be "RELENTLESS HEROES", a comedy that completes the trilogy of services' plays that have proven so popular, both in "Worm's Eye View" (A.F. & S.A.) and "Theグ fog over Somme (Naval)" and in "RELENTLESS HEROES", the Army has a chance to prove itself. As with the other Services' plays, popular English actor, WILLIAM HODGE, is the star.

The second play is an Australian one, "POMMY"; a novel comedy-drama set on a Queensland sheep station and once again WILLIAM HODGE has the starring role of "Juneau", an Irish rascal.

Thirdly, we hope to see in this theatre the sparkling comedy, "DEAR CHARLES". Adapted from the French by Alan Melville, "DEAR CHARLES" has an intriguing Parisian background and develops hilarious situations from early after the curtain rises right up to the sophisticated end. The fine cast assembled by headed by SOPHIE STEWART with CLEMENT MCCALLIN, ELLIS IRVING and many other well-known players in supporting roles.
