THE FUNERAL.

The funeral cortège left the residence of Dr. and Mrs. T. G. Smith, in Oatland, on Sunday at 3.30 p.m. and reached the Mitcham Cemetery about an hour later. During the short notice, the friends of the deceased, assembled about the tomb, were deeply impressed by the manner in which E. Barr Smith leading the mourners, and carrying the urn containing the ashes of the late Mr. E. Barr Smith, occupied a place in the funeral cortège. The services were performed at the Adelaide Crematorium on Saturday night, when the relatives and friends were present. Part of the proceedings was performed by the Crematorium by Archdeacon Kempton.

Important Scholarships.

The statutes for four new scholarships, worth £1,500, were approved at a meeting of the University Senate on Wednesday afternoon. In introducing the matter, the Warlen (Mr. Frederic Chaplin, C.M.G.), drew attention to the fact that many additions had been made to the endowments of the University. It was said, however, that the community wished to keep the memory of important men, but that in doing so they turned naturally to the University, thus achieving that end. That state of affairs was gratifying to the members of the Senate.

—in Memory of a Soldier.

The first scholarship to engage attention was that originally established by the Colonial Travellers' Association in 1871, which is worth £1,500, but which, as a result of the generosity of Sir Edwin Smith, has been increased to £3,000. The new scholarship will be given in memory of a soldier, and the inscription will read: "In Memory of a Soldier."

All commercial names have been recorded, and it will be seen that the late Mr. Archibald Mackie, who was a member of the Colonial Travellers' Association, and who has subscribed £1,500 for the purpose of founding a bursary to bear his name, will be remembered. It will be awarded from time to time to a student nominated by the academic council, and the sum of £1,500 has been added to the University's endowment.

—Two Endowments for One Memory.

A scholarship in political economy, valued at £1,500, was approved at the last meeting of the Board of Trustees. The late Mr. J. L. Young, founder and president of the Australasian Educational Institution, at which this scholarship was established, has made the gift in memory of his father, Mr. W. J. Young. The condition of the scholarship is that it shall be awarded to a student who has passed the University's examination in political economy. The scholarship will be known as the John Young Scholarship for Research. This is the first time that a scholarship has been awarded in memory of two people, and it is expected that it will be a fitting memorial to Mr. W. J. Young, who was a prominent figure in the political world.

PERSONAL.

Speaking at the meeting of the Senate of the Adelaide University on Wednesday, the warden (Mr. F. Clapp, C.M.G.) made sympathetic reference to the death of Mr. R. Barr Smith. He mentioned that Mr. Barr Smith had been a member of the Senate of the University, and that it was the first time that the Senate had met since his death on Wednesday, and he had no work to do for the university. His death was regarded as a great loss to the University. He had been a member of the Senate for 39 years, and during the earlier part of that period especially, and even before it, he had consistently devoted his energies to promoting the interests of the University and had frequently rendered generous financial assistance.

J. H. Young Research Scholarship.

A further sum of £200, being the amount subscribed by four students during the year, was on Friday paid over to the registrar of the University, making the total now paid to him towards the establishment of the J. H. Young Research Scholarship, which does not include the £200 bequeathed by the late Mr. J. H. Finlayson, with which it was necessary to establish a separate scholarship, styled the "Lorenzo Young Scholarship," for political economy, in accordance with the wishes of the deceased. The funds to the two scholarships, a sum of £400, and a smaller sum in the hands of the trustees, Messrs. W. Bullock and J. T. Fells, respectively, are in charge of the University, and the secretary is Mr. E. H. Sumner.
