ADELAIDE DOCTOR

HONOURED IN ABERDEEN.

The eighty-second annual meeting of the British Medical Association, which was held in Aberdeen in July last, was of special interest to Professor A. H. Hay ward, of the high honors which have been conferred upon a distinguished member of the medical profession in Adelaide. Dr. W. T. Hayward, who was a member of the council of the association throughout the year, and was one of the vice-presidents of the association for 1914-15, was elected to the council of the association for 1918-19. The chairman of the council, in nominating Dr. Hayward, remarked that he had a peculiar personal pleasure after his recent visit to Australia, in moving the election of Dr. Hayward, who had been a distinguished member of the Australian association for many years, and was one of the original members of the association in Australia (the South Australian branch), and more than anyone was responsible for the success of the association in the Commonwealth and New Zealand.

The motion was carried with acclamation.

A further interest in the meeting of the medical congress was due to the fact that at the graduation ceremony of the Aberdeen University the honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred on the distinguished members of the British Medical Association, of whom Dr. Hayward was one. Those honored were Sir Victor Horsley, John Rideal, and Drs. Arnebold, Garrod, and T. J. Verrell. Professor Matthew Hay, who was prominently in the present, signed the candidates, and referring to them, said they represented the medical profession, and that they were recognized in Dr. Hayward a physician who, notwithstanding the claims of an important medical man and a great scholar, as the university teacher, had chosen to devote his great administrative powers to the higher medical profession, not only within his own State, but in Adelaide Hospital by them to the chairmanship of the British Medical Association. The senate believed that it was bestowing an honor which would meet with the approval of the whole association.

Dr. Hayward, who has been so highly honored by the British Medical Association and the University of Aberdeen, is an honorary physician to the Adelaide Hospital for Children, and lecturer on mental and physical diseases at the University of Adelaide. For 2 years he was one of the university lecturers in clinical medicine. In 1900 Dr. Hayward was elected to the council of the University of Adelaide, and in 1918 the committee of the Adelaide Hospital as the representative of the university on its board of management.
Dr. W. T. Hayward Honored.

The eighty-second annual meeting of the British Medical Association, which is of special interest to South Australians, on the resolution of which a sub-committee has been convened, was held on September 8. At the opening of the meeting, the President, Mr. A. A. Simpson, welcomed the members and expressed the hope that the remainder of the meeting would be as successful as the last. The association was received with the usual warm hospitality, and the committee held at the University of Adelaide on September 8. It had been resolved that a letter be sent to the President of the association expressing the association's appreciation of the efforts of the committee and its members in organizing the meeting. The President of the association, Mr. T. C. Stirling, expressed the thanks of the committee, and Mr. J. B. Smith, the President of the South Australian Medical Association, conveyed the thanks of the committee to the Mayor and his officials for the cordial reception given to the members of the association, and the committee, in conclusion, expressed the thanks of the association to the Mayor and his officials for the cordial reception given to the members of the association on the occasion of their visit to Adelaide.

BRITISH MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

The eighty-second annual meeting of the British Medical Association, which is of special interest to South Australians, on the resolution of which a sub-committee has been convened, was held on September 8. At the opening of the meeting, the President, Mr. A. A. Simpson, welcomed the members and expressed the hope that the remainder of the meeting would be as successful as the last. The association was received with the usual warm hospitality, and the committee held at the University of Adelaide on September 8. It had been resolved that a letter be sent to the President of the association expressing the association's appreciation of the efforts of the committee and its members in organizing the meeting. The President of the association, Mr. T. C. Stirling, expressed the thanks of the committee, and Mr. J. B. Smith, the President of the South Australian Medical Association, conveyed the thanks of the committee to the Mayor and his officials for the cordial reception given to the members of the association, and the committee, in conclusion, expressed the thanks of the association to the Mayor and his officials for the cordial reception given to the members of the association on the occasion of their visit to Adelaide.

The chairman of the council, Dr. H. A. Harrow, said that he had a peculiar personal union, after his recent visit to Australia, in that he had been a distinguished member of the association, and in fact he was one of the original members who formed a branch of the association in Australia (the South Australian branch), and more than any other representative of that branch, he was a lover of the association throughout the Commonwealth and New Zealand.

The motion was carried with acclamation.

Further interest in the meeting of the Medical Congress was due to the fact that at the graduation ceremony of the University of Adelaide, on September 8, the degree of LL.D. was conferred upon five distinguished members of the medical profession, of whom Dr. Hayward, one of the honorees, was appointed to the chairmanship of the council of the association. The University of Adelaide, in recognition of Dr. Hayward's services to the University, had chosen to devote his great administrative powers to the advancement of the medical profession. Dr. Hayward has been a member of the council of the University of Adelaide, during the whole of its existence, and has been one of the most trusted and followed of the council of the University. He has served as the President of the council, and has been a prominent figure in the University for many years. The University has accorded him a great honor in appointing him to the chairmanship of the council of the University.

The University of Adelaide has also accorded him a great honor in appointing him to the chairmanship of the council of the University. The University has accorded him a great honor in appointing him to the chairmanship of the council of the University.