LITERATURE AND THE WORKER.

THE HAPPINESS IN ART.

The number of applicants desires to joining the tutorial classes in English literature at the University of the Workers' Educational Association in London has been very numerous. The course will commence early in June. At the University on Tuesday, Professor Nairne delivered an interesting preparatory lecture.

Professor Nairne pointed out that all were concerned in the winning of a living, and that all were anxious to an end, and that end was living. Not
WORKERS STUDYING ENGLISH LITERATURE

For the report of the English Language & Literature Section of the Missouri State College, the number of students enrolled for the term was 8, it was stated that the number of students enrolled for the term was 8, and that the number of students enrolled for the term was 8. The number of students enrolled for the term was 8, and the number of students enrolled for the term was 8. The number of students enrolled for the term was 8, and the number of students enrolled for the term was 8.
VERSE FROM THE TRENCHES.

The opening meeting for the new year of the Poetry Society was held at the Institute, Norrie-street, on Monday night. Mr. H. W. Ullandell was in the chair. An address was delivered by Mr. W. J. Millard. After a series of readings by members of the society, the meeting adjourned.

STATE FORESTRY PLANS.

A forward step in connection with the forestry movement in South Australia has been taken in the publication of the report of the committee appointed to consider the systematic utilisation of the Knitops reserve, consisting of about 5,000 acres in the Flinders district, for a long period of years. The Attorney-General (Hon. J. H. V. Eyre), in his address on Friday, said that the Knitops working plan, which was prepared by Mr. H. W. Gill, was designed to ensure that the forest resources of the State should be preserved for the benefit of future generations. The plan includes the provision for the establishment of a variety of timber species, including hardwoods and softwoods, to ensure a steady supply of timber for the needs of the State. The plan also provides for the establishment of a research station to study the growth and management of the forest resources.

The committee, which was appointed by the Government, has recommended that the Knitops reserve should be reserved for the exclusive use of the State for a period of 100 years. The report also recommends that the reserve should be managed in such a way as to ensure a steady supply of timber for the needs of the State, while at the same time providing for the conservation of the forest resources. The committee has also recommended that the reserve should be divided into sections, each section being managed in such a way as to ensure a steady supply of timber for the needs of the State.

The report of the committee has been received with much interest by the forestry community. The plan is expected to provide a much-needed source of revenue for the State, while at the same time ensuring the conservation of the forest resources.

[Adelaide, 18-17]

[Adelaide, 19-17]
THE TEACHING OF LATIN.
PROFESSOR DARLEY NAYLORS

The war has given new life to the old controversy about the study of Latin and Greek. One phase of it that is of special interest in Adelaide has been made the subject of an article in the March number of the "Classical Review," by a well-known scholar of the University of Manchester.

The article is a rejoinder to a paper published last year by Professor Darley Naylors, in which he maintained the theory that the important point in the translation into Latin, but translation into English is out of the question. Naylors urged to the contrary, that it is still of the utmost importance to have a sound Roman Latin, that the text is the most important thing, and that the translation into Latin should be of better quality than the translation into English.

Another point of view is taken by the same author, who advises that Latin should be taught as a spoken language, and not as a written one. He states that Latin is not used in daily life, and that it is only used in a few special cases, such as in law, politics, and diplomacy.

One of the most important benefits of the study of Latin is the improvement of the vocabulary and grammar of the English language. Naylors states that the English language has been greatly enriched by the study of Latin, and that it is important to continue this study in the future.

The article ends with a call for the continuation of the study of Latin in schools and universities, and for the promotion of the language in all its forms, written and spoken.

THE BUNCY PRIZE.
SONGS OF A CAMPAIGN.

By Lewa Collett.

Adelaide, 19th Sep. 1917.

Some of the early students of the University have left and joined the Educational Department of the War, and the University has been at the famous Tattie's Avenue Bay.

The very early songs, written to suit the circumstances in Egypt, are still sung by the University students, and are very popular among the soldiers.

The songs are written for the students, and are often requested by the soldiers to sing them. The songs are written in a simple and easy style, and are often very humorous.

The songs are often sung in the streets, and are very popular with the soldiers.

The songs are written in a simple and easy style, and are often very humorous.

The songs are often sung in the streets, and are very popular with the soldiers.

The songs are written in a simple and easy style, and are often very humorous.

The songs are often sung in the streets, and are very popular with the soldiers.

The songs are written in a simple and easy style, and are often very humorous.

The songs are often sung in the streets, and are very popular with the soldiers.

The songs are written in a simple and easy style, and are often very humorous.

The songs are often sung in the streets, and are very popular with the soldiers.

The songs are written in a simple and easy style, and are often very humorous.

The songs are often sung in the streets, and are very popular with the soldiers.

The songs are written in a simple and easy style, and are often very humorous.

The songs are often sung in the streets, and are very popular with the soldiers.