Criticism in Parliament

There was one other matter he was willing to refer to before the trial took place. In speaking to a Bill for the reorganization of that court, at present before the House, the leader of the Opposition and commented severely on his (the speaker's) qualifications for the position. He did not think it would be proper to say that it was necessary for him to attempt to reply to the criticism so far as concerned himself. But he must refer to the matter in justice to the raising of that court. He wanted to say that for the practical purposes the procedure in the court was beyond question. Mr. Milligan was in camp, and could not speak for himself, therefore he would ask for him. If his own (the president's) ignorance of the procedure as far as the leader of the Opposition believed it to have been, that would not in any way account for the court's failure. He had refused to suspend the court to remove any misunderstanding regarding the characteristics of the proceedings before the court as they affected the judicial and, he desired to point out that the court was controlled by officers whose work needed no defense.

Advocating
13th October 1916

The Rev. W. Jeffries, of the Methodist church, Woodville, has received news that his son, Surgeon-Major L. W. Jeffries, has been awarded the D.S.O. of Great Britain. Major Jeffries had served in the medical corps of the Australian Imperial Force, and was now with the 2nd Expeditionary Force as a Capt. After service in Egypt and Gallipoli, where he was wounded, and also that the honors of being mentioned in the Dispatches, he went on to France as a medical officer of the hospital. In France he obtained his majority, and his many dealings, and he was a great credit to the Australian Army. He has been the D.S.O.

The Industrial Court Judge

There is no development regarding the resignation of Professor Jethro Brown as Chief Judge of the Industrial Court. The Government has still not announced a successor. There is no suggestion that his Hon. Sir W. Jeffries, of the present position on the bench, will take the position. The bench will remove his duties at the university, and it may be attached to the fact that the Deputy Governor has given his assent to the question of providing this Judge, and the advancement to $1,000. This was taken when Parliament re-organized the Industrial Court, and the provision was not attempted then. As it now stands there is nothing more than a matter of whether the Government will give the judge a personal service contract.
An Adelaide Woman.

Her War Work.

[By Amy E. Mack.]

Miss Dorothy Proudfit, of Adelaide, South Australia, has certainly made a great deal of work. She left Australia to study sociology at the London School of Economics, where she was in charge of a very important branch of the Ministry of Munitions. From Adelaide to London, and then to Paris, she has been a valuable Australian girl. She has travelled the journey by herself. Miss Proudfit is twenty-two years old. At the end of six months in London, Miss Proudfit was in the big city, and she has been doing much work there. She has helped many people, and has been very useful. In her work, she has been very much liked, and has been very successful.

The story of Miss Proudfit is an interesting one. When the war began, she was only seventeen years old, and had just finished her studies at the London School of Economics. She was very determined to do what she could for the war effort, and so she decided to go to France, where she could do more work. She went to Paris, and there she found a job in a factory making munitions. She worked very hard, and did a great deal of good work. She was very successful, and everyone was very pleased with her.

Miss Proudfit has been in France for several months now, and she is doing a great deal of work. She has been helping many people, and has been very useful. She is very determined to do what she can for the war effort, and she is doing a great deal of good work. She is very much liked, and everyone is very pleased with her.

The story of Miss Proudfit is an interesting one, and it shows how much can be done by a young woman who is determined to do what she can for the war effort. She is very successful, and everyone is very pleased with her.
