

opinion of the young man's attainments. Only a few weeks before he died Sir Edward Stirling gave expression to the great admiration he had for the really high-class original work for a man of his age which Dr. Robertson has done. Professor Stirling's opinion on scientific matters was of great value. Dr. Robertson has published a large number of scientific works, which appeared in the leading scientific journals of England and America. He has also published a volume of short stories.