UNIVERSITY LAW STUDENTS.

The University law students, at their meeting on the 7th inst., considered the following question:- Is a resident of Victoria, and was his property at anchor in the Port River by a motor launch? The students pointed out that under the government of South Australia, the Port River was in the hands of the Port River Board, but the government of Victoria was in charge of the Port. They then discussed the rights of the port authorities and the status of property at anchor in the Port River.

Without disease the case would have been.

It was not easy to say what disease was prevalent in the flock, and while the symptoms of many diseases were similar, the exact diagnosis was not possible. The disease was widespread and affected all parts of the flock. It was not confined to a specific area and was found in different parts of the country.

Elder Conservatorium Concert.

In spite of the heavy rain there was a capital attendance at the Elder Hall on Monday evening, when the staff of the Elder Conservatorium, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Forte, made their debut in Adelaide. The programme was well received, and the audience was captivated by the performances of the students. The concert was a great success and the students were congratulated on their excellent work.

Benefit Disease.

A Mechanism of Protection.

WHY THERE'S A LIMIT TO LIFE'S SPAN.

The first of a series of lectures on the subject of disease was given in the Bonyo Hall on Tuesday evening. The lecturer, a well-known physician, discussed the nature and causes of disease, and the various mechanisms that protect the body from its effects.
