AN EXTRACT FROM ADELAIDE

An extract from the letter of congratulation from the Chancellor of the University of Melbourne to the Registrar of the Adelaide University, dated 21 May 1921.

"We have been very fortunate in Adelaide during the past year. A new engineering laboratory and £20,000 for general purposes from the Government have been received. A new medical school from the Darwin Hospital has been established, and £11,000 has been voted for the support of the library from the Smith Trust.

The University has been rising to a new plane of efficiency, and the annual meeting of the University Council has been well attended. The financial position is sound, and the future of the University is promising.

With best wishes for the success of the University and its students, I remain yours faithfully,

Chancellor of the University of Adelaide

LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Details of the Paris Peace Conference, which was attended by representatives of several countries, including Australia, were given by Professor Phillipson in his lecture on 13 March 1921.

"The Conference was attended by representatives of many countries, including Australia. The Conference was a great success, and the Peace Treaty was signed on 28 June 1919. The Treaty was ratified by all the signatory powers, and it marked the end of the Great War."
